Carter halts Iranian oil purchases

©The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter Monday indefinitely halted U.S. purchases of Iranian oil to emphasize that the United States will not allow its dependence on imported oil to influence efforts to free the American hostages in Tehran.

"No one should underestimate the resolve of the American government and the American people in this matter," Carter warned in announcing the cutoff of the 700,000 barrels a day — almost 10 percent of U.S. imports — that the United States has been buying from Iran in recent months.

"It is necessary to eliminate any suggestion that economic pressures can weaken our stand on basic issues of principle," the president said. "Our position must be clear. I am ordering that we discontinue purchasing of any oil from Iran for delivery to this country."

Administration aides said that Carter's action by itself would not produce gasoline or other fuel shortages, in part because Iranian crude could be replaced by oil from other countries. But Carter said that the new emergency in Iran demonstrates the "extreme importance" of reducing energy use.

Carter added: "I urge every American citizen and every American business to redouble efforts to curtail the use of petroleum products. This action will pose a real challenge to our country. It will be a test of our strength and of our determination."

The president had hardly finished his brief, nationally televised announcement when word came from Tehran that Iran's Moslem-clergy dominated government had decided to institute an oil boycott against the United States. The Iranians, in announcing their move, pointedly insisted they had made their decision before learning of Carter's order to stop buying Iranian oil.

Carter administration officials reacted by saying the U.S. decision had not been taken in anticipation of an Iranian boycott and said they didn't want to get into arguments about who had acted first.

Still, this latest sequence of moves and counter moves suggested the possibility of an unpredictable new escalation of the crisis triggered eight days ago when militant Iranian students, with their government's backing, stormed the U.S. embassy compound in Tehran and took 60 to 65 Americans prisoner.

As the price of the hostages' release, the Iranians are demanding that deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who is undergoing treatment in New York for cancer, be returned to Iran to stand trial. The United States has rejected that demand and insisted that the hostages be freed.

Senior administration officials, who elaborated on Carter's announcement Monday, conceded that all efforts to find an effective channel for breaking through the political chaos in Iran and appealing to that country's de facto ruler, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, so far have proved fruitless. The officials also admitted that they have no immediate way of telling whether the latest U.S. move will have any impact on easing the hostages' plight.

Wide support for display of 'backbone'

By United Press International

President Carter's decision Monday to halt oil imports from Iran won almost universal praise nationally as a display of American "backbone" and refusal to be "blackmailed" by militants holding hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who has criticized Carter's leadership in recent weeks as part of his campaign for the White House, said he supported the president's decision.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, another candidate for Carter's job, called the decision "dead right." GOP presidential candidate John Connally said he hoped the action would lead to the hostages' safe release.

There was at least one negative reaction, from Rep. Paul Tribie, R-Va., who said Carter was "taking Iran's weapon and turning it on us. The president's action will not adversely affect Iran but will only create problems here at home."

Carter halted purchase of Iranian oil and the State Department estimated the cutoff involved between 700,000 and 800,000 barrels a day — nearly 10 percent of all U.S. imports.

In Davenport, Iowa, Kennedy said, "Basically, I'm in support of the steps the administration would take to gain the release of the hostages."

Fuel prices may climb before long

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's embargo on Iranian crude oil imports will have little immediate effect on U.S. gasoline and fuel oil supplies but could push up prices, energy specialists and oil men said Monday.

Because of an estimated 60-day time lag for oil shipments, they said, importers should have plenty of time to make other supply arrangements before effects of the cutoff are felt.

Some 300,000 to 400,000 barrels of crude oil — about 5 percent of total U.S. oil imports of 8 million -- now come from directly from Iran.

The same amount is imported indirectly in the form of gasoline, heating oil and aviation fuel refined in offshore installations like the large Amerada Hess refinery in the Virgin Islands.

Carter's order affected all the crude and the bulk of the refined products — the portion coming from the Virgin Islands. Other sources of refined Iranian oil were not embargoed because they are too hard to trace to their country of origin.

Joseph Tovey, a prominent New York energy investment analyst, called the Carter move a political gesture likely to have little effect on U.S. petroleum supplies or prices.

"All it does is insult the Iranians without imposing the least bit of damage on their economy," said Tovey. "It's like a man who is dying of hunger in a famine threatening to boycott the wheat he is offered."

Autumn's sliding away swiftly

Cool temperatures and a setting sun didn't dampen the enthusiasm of Nikie Phillips, 4, left, Kelly Gutierrez, 9, and Susie Phillips, 8, as they swung down a slide Monday evening at the Lincoln Elementary School playground in Twin Falls. With winter approaching, mothers are bundling up their offspring before they head for school; fathers are looking over their ski equipment, and children are taking advantage of sunny, mild days for a final fling on the playgrounds.

Drive 3 miles less every day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans would not need one drop of oil from Iran if they could cut back their driving by three miles each day, the administration said Monday.

But what the government is really asking is for each driver to reduce mileage by 11 percent, according to Department of Energy figures.

The average car in the United States is driven 9,839 miles per year — or an average of about 27 miles a day.

Thus a reduction of three miles per day would mean 1,095 miles less per car.

Secrets of Halley's comet may yield to space probe

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON — The space agency said Monday it is moving ahead with plans to fire an instrument probe into Halley's comet in 1985 and then have the automated probe-launcher rendezvous with the comet Tempel 2 three years later.

The ambitious mission would give scientists their first close look at some of the least-predictable and understood bodies of the solar system.

The project has not yet been approved by either the White House or Congress. But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday it has asked scientists to propose experiments so the mission can get a prompt start when it is approved.

The plan is to carry out the mission in cooperation with the European Space Agency, an 11-nation consortium which will build the Halley probe. The United States will be responsible for the launching, the rendezvous spacecraft system and mission operations.

The scientific payload on the two units would be shared by scientists from around the world.

The mission is to begin with a space shuttle launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in July 1985. Once in Earth orbit, the spacecraft will use new electric engines to approach Halley's comet in November 1985, about 75 million miles from Earth.

The spacecraft then will fire the probe into the comet, aimed to pass within 930 miles of its nucleus.

Although the probe's instrumentation has not been selected, the objective of that part of the mission will be to determine the chemical makeup of gases and dust making up the comet's outer sections.

If all goes well, the main spacecraft then is to cruise on to its rendezvous with Tempel 2 in 1988. The craft will approach the comet cautiously at first, hovering a thousand miles or so outside its theoretical dust cloud to assess the hazards.

If scientists believe the dangers slight, the spacecraft will be directed to proceed to within 60 miles, then 30 miles, of the nucleus.

Then it is to fly side-by-side with the comet for a year or more, taking high-quality pictures and gathering other data as the comet loops around the sun.

NASA said the cameras may be able to detect objects as small as a baseball on the surface of the comet's nucleus.

Halley's sun orbit brings into the Earth's neighborhood every 76 years, and it will be brightest and most easily seen in the early spring of 1986.

It is extremely dusty, and scientists say it is by far the best target for the first such comet exploration.

Tempel 2 is smaller and relatively stable, and takes less time to circle the sun.

Evans sees no oil shortage

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans said Monday he did not foresee an emergency oil shortage because of President Carter's decision to cut off imports of Iranian oil.

Evans said the U.S. would make up the 3 to 5 percent total oil input from other friendly nations.

The governor said he has requested Robert Lenaghen, director of the Idaho Office of Energy, to reassess the fuel outlook for Idaho and report back to him this week.

Evans said he does not anticipate any severe supply problems at this time.

"But we don't want to get hurt or caught in a bad situation," Evans said.

Church supports cutoff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, agreed Monday with President Carter that the United States should not buy Iranian oil.

"We shouldn't buy a drop of Iranian oil as long as they hold Americans hostage," Church said following President Carter's announcement of the immediate cutoff of all oil imported from Iran.

"If they think that our lust for oil exceeds our loyalty to one another now is the time to disabuse them of that notion," Church said. "On this issue, I have no doubt that the country stands united behind the President."

No structural damage at TMI plant

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Metropolitan Edison Co. said Monday a visual survey from inside the crippled Three Mile Island Unit No. 2 showed no structural damage from the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

Met-Ed spokesman David Kluesik said a television camera and a radiation meter were installed during the weekend in the building that houses the nuclear reactor involved in the March 28 accident.

He said two hours of videotape was taken Saturday with the aid of a strobe light.

Radiation readings indicated gamma radiation levels were between 3-5 rems per hour and beta radiation levels were approximately 400 rems per hour, Kluesik added.

Farm land prices could jump 10% next year

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The price of farm land, which has already doubled during this decade, could increase 10 percent or more next year, according to a panel at the agricultural bankers conference here.

About 300 people attended a seminar on the impact of the cost of farm land Monday afternoon during the first full day of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Banking Conference. About 2,000 people are attending the conference, which ends Wednesday afternoon.

Michael Boehlje, an economist from Iowa State University, predicted the average price of farm land across the country will jump 10 percent next year.

Con Engleborn, an Arizona banker, said the price of irrigated farm land in the West could increase 12 percent next year.

And Arthur Buffington, president of the Federal Land Bank in Omaha, said the cost of Midwest farm land could go up 15 percent.

With today's combination of high interest rates and inflation, the panel agreed, it is impossible for a farmer to make newly purchased land pay for itself. But they also agreed that land can still be a sound investment.

Panel member Ralph Forrest, an Illinois banker, said it takes the profits from more than two acres of prime Illinois land to pay the interest costs on one acre. But land is still seen as a good hedge against inflation, he said.

The last member of the panel, Indiana farmer John Corya, said land is a good long-term investment simply because "you know they're not going to make any more."

He described his 3,000 acre farm where the cash flow generated from new land is never enough to cover the land payments.

Land near him costs anywhere from $2,800 an acre to "I don't know what," he said.

"The land won't cash flow. But, when we were buying land 10 years ago for $700 an acre it didn't cash flow, either." He said the land can start paying for itself after a few years, though.

To buy land and expand a farm, a farmer needs a good "nurse cow," Corya said. A nurse cow is an outside source of income.

For Corya, the nurse cow used to be the income from 12,000 hogs and rented farm land.

But hogs that used to produce $30 to $70 net profit each for Corya are likely to cost him about $3 each this year. And the profits from rented farm land have fallen from about $8 an acre to $3 as increased land prices have driven up rents.

Add these problems to the $125 an acre he estimates his new land costs him each year and it's no wonder he's a little pessimistic this year.

Based on what economists call long-wave theory, he said, the world could be heading for a deep depression. (Long-wave theory says, despite its short term ups and downs, the world economy is on a long track that goes from boom to bust about every 50 years. By that theory, the world is ready for a crash.)

Firemen win fight against deadly gas

MISSISSAUGA, Ontario (UPI) — Weary firemen said Monday they apparently won a desperate battle against deadly chlorine gas leaking from a derailed tanker car, but it may be another two days before almost 250,000 Canadians can return home.

Officials said late Monday the flames had died down considerably and had become a "controlled burn."

"As far as the fire's concerned, we could put it out in about two minutes," Bentley said, explaining it was safer to let the propane vapors burn off rather than kill the fire and risk another blast while pumping out the volatile chemical.

"We're hoping this will be the last night of the evacuation," Ontario Attorney General Roy McMurtry said. Police Inspector Barry King said, however, the largest peacetime evacuation in Canadian history could last another two days.

Canadian Pacific Rail Executive Vice President Bill Stinson told McMurtry the railway was prepared to pay "any reasonable out-of-pocket expenses" claimed by the quarter-million people forced to leave their homes because of the train derailment.

"Time is on our side now. We think we are in good shape," Fire Chief Gordon Bentley said of efforts to prevent two burning propane tank cars from exploding and rupturing a car containing 90 tons of liquid chlorine.

Mississauga, a city of 160,000 20 miles west of Toronto, resembled a ghost town Monday. Police cruisers were stationed one block apart and more than 700 officers were assigned to protect the deserted homes from looters.

Chlorine gas was leaking from one of 24 cars on a 106-unit Canadian Pacific Rail freight train that derailed at midnight Saturday.

Massive explosions ripped through at least eight of the 11 cars carrying propane gas and the burning wreckage threatened to blow up the chlorine tanker.

Mayor Hazel McCallion said it was a blessing that the derailment occured in an industrial area. "I think that where it occured has been an act of God."

Basketload of promises

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Six American congresswomen went to the Cambodian capital at Phnom Penh Monday seeking an increased flow of food to starving people there and returned with a basketload of promises.

Cambodian Foreign Minister Hun Sen "utterly rejected" a proposed land route from Thailand but told the delegation his country would take as much aid as Phnom Penh's Pochentong Airport could handle.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said the Cambodian official also offered to "consider an alternate" plan for using regional domestic airports in the country.

Demonstration pondered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Delegates of the American Agriculture Movement — promoting alcohol fuels as loudly as they advocate parity prices — convened Monday to consider a possible third annual Washington demonstration this winter.

At least one or two delegates from 28 states also may elect national officers and outline a structure for the grassroots radical farm organization which was organized two years ago in the wheatfields of Colorado when farm prices had fallen sharply.

At closed meetings through Thursday, the delegates will discuss suggestions for another mass trip to Washington for January and February.

Propane cars still burning

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Railroad officials hired a Houston demolitions expert Monday night to blow up three burning propane tank cars which have menaced the homes of about 700 persons for two days.

The cars were among 29 that derailed from a Pensacola-bound, 109-car Louisville & Nashville train early Sunday. Six cars filled with propane caught fire and there were four explosions but no one was hurt.

Only three continued to burn Monday night.

Tank car derails, leaks

HOLLAND, Mich. (UPI) — A tank car carrying deadly ammoniated hydrogen fluoride derailed, overturned and began leaking Monday, forcing more than 1,000 persons from their homes in this southwest Michigan resort area.

About 14 hours after the derailment was reported, an all-clear was issued by the Ottawa County Emergency Services office and those evacuated were allowed to return to their homes.

The ammoniated hydrogen fluoride had been shipped from Houston to DuPont deNemours of Montague, where it is used to produce refrigerator coolant.

Some leave Tellico land

LOUDON, Tenn. (UPI) — Ben Ritchey and his family packed up Monday, put their clothing and furniture into a pickup truck and left their home of 29 years rather than be evicted from the Tennessee Valley Authority's Tellico Dam project area.

But while the Ritcheys were moving, white-haired Nellie McCall, 75, and wiry Tom Moser vowed to stay until federal marshals throw them off their land.

"This is a sad day," Jean Ritchey said while supervising the loading of boxs of clothes and dishes. "We're going around in circles trying to get everything together.

"We're not going to be manhandled by no federal marshal. We haven't broken any law and we were not going to be treated as if we had," Mrs. Ritchey said from her weatherbeaten house on a dirt road overlooking the project area.

The property owned by the three landholders was condemned in court proceedings early in the 1970s. The landholders, however, refused to cash checks the government gave them for their property.

OPEC economists convene

Economists from the oil-rich Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met in Vienna Monday to prepare the groundwork for next month's OPEC oil ministers' meeting to determine how much to raise the world price of oil.

From the secret, week-long economists' meeting at OPEC headquarters in Vienna will come the statistics and recommendations the oil ministers will rely on in setting new oil prices when they meet in Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 17.

Warning from Thatcher

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Monday growing Soviet offensive might will force the Western allies to equip themselves with new defensive weapons "very soon."

"By extending her own armament efforts the Soviet Union compels others to do likewise," she said. "We must not fall further behind, even though the decisions needed very soon are hard for democracies to take."

Farmland price may rise 10%

This is a good time to be preparing for an economic "winter," he said. He suggested paying off debts and getting more cash. And answering a question from the audience, he said, "If farm land was the only asset I had, I would probably sell some."

Buffington was more optimistic about the immediate future. He said even at present prices, farm land must be paying for itself. A study by the Federal Land Bank of 65,000 loans it made over the past four years showed only about 350 delinquent, he said.

The study also showed that 85 percent of the farm land sold was bought by farmers. "Farmers are building for the future," he said.

"People who are the best managers are buying the land and that's good," he said.

But a banker from the audience noted that the only agricultural customers at his bank who are in trouble made large land purchases in the last five years.

And another member of the audience asked Buffington if there wasn't some danger of a land aristocracy emerging if some farmers are buying more and more land.

"That seems to be the way it's going," he admitted. But he said there is no danger. "We are seeing some managers who aren't able to manage what they've built. We see young farmers getting started who will be able to buy those operations."

Corya said there is no question farms will get larger and more efficient. "But we won't see farm land owned by people who aren't involved in running the farm because that isn't the most efficient way to operate."

Today's weather

Ideal for autumn, but where's snow and rain?

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Mostly fair and a little warmer through Wednesday. Chance of scattered patches of early morning fog. Highs both days middle 40s to low 50s. Overnight lows in the middle teens to low 20s.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, lower Wood River valley:

Mostly fair through Wednesday with chance of a few areas of valley fog in late night or early morning hours. Highs middle 40s to lower 50s both days. Overnight lows middle teens to low 20s.

Synopsis:

Light winds and sunny skies made Monday another enjoyable autumn day across Idaho.

A few areas of low clouds and fog were reported in valleys of northern Idaho but in other areas skies were clear. A broad band of high pressure will remain over the Pacific Northwest for the next 36 hours, keeping skies mostly clear. Temperatures will be slightly warmer through Wednesday.

An air stagnation advisory for northern Idaho has been extended through today, with cool, stable air trapped in lower valleys.

Low temperatures in Idaho Monday morning were generally in the teens and 20s, but Stanley was the coldest spot at 7 degrees above zero. Some other minimum readings included Pocatello 16, Twin Falls 18, Boise 27 and Lewiston 29. The high reading in the Gem State on Monday was 57 degrees at Caldwell.

Across the nation, the warmest place on Monday once again was Fort Myers, Fla., with a reading of 91 degrees. Jackson, Wyo., was the coldest at 10 below zero.

For northern Nevada, the outlook is for mostly clear skies and a slow warming trend through Wednesday. High temperatures will range from near 60 in the daytime to lows near 20. Fair skies, cool nights and sunny days are forecast for northern Utah, where some haze may develop in valleys. Temperatures will range from highs in the 50s to lows near 20.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho for Thursday through Saturday calls for fair skies and temperatures above seasonal normals. Highs will range from 45 to 55 with lows from the middle 20s to low 30s.

Display of 'backbone' gains broad support

Most other responses were stronger and reflected the rising tempers of Americans about the embassy takeover.

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., said Carter's action "demonstrates that we care more about the lives of the Americans being held hostage than about oil."

Rep. Tom Evans, R-Del., said: "We need national backbone more than Arab oil. I am sick and tired of seeing the United States being pushed around by anyone just because they think they possess some kind of economic leverage."

He said he hoped Carter's action would "serve as a signal to Iran and anyone else in the world that America doesn't intend to be held hostage by any self-proclaimed leader."

Among others who praised Carter's action were Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas; labor leader George Meany; and Bertram Gold, executive vice president of the American Jewish Committee.

Meany said "the United States can not allow itself to be backmailed any longer."

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, said "This removes oil as a bargaining chip in delicate hostage negotiations, and I fully support President Carter's action."

"He's dead right," added another GOP presidential contender, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

In New York the president's announcement was cheered by hundreds of oil-company executives who listened to it at an industry trade association meeting.

Organized labor also supported the move in the form of a statement by outgoing AFL-CIO President George Meany, who said, "President Carter has acted wisely and well. The U.S. cannot and must not allow itself to be blackmailed any longer."

However, amid the general praise for Carter's decision there were examples of the divisions that still exist in the United States over energy policy.

The Consumer Energy Council of America, for example, said that "it is imperative that any action to shut off imports be coupled with the immediate reimposition of price and allocation controls on domestic crude oil and heating oil."

But Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, another Republican presidential hopeful, reflected the sentiment of the oil industry when he declared that "the Iranian crisis once again underlines the need for increased domestic production of oil, gas and coal."

Conservation best method to live with less energy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials, following President Carter's decision to halt imports of Iranian oil, Monday once again said the way to live with less energy is to conserve.

Returning to a theme the administration has sounded many times in handling the energy problem, officials said the cutoff would have no adverse effect on the U.S. economy, provided Americans curtail their energy use.

They said if every American drives three miles less a day it would save enough gasoline to make up for the loss of 700,000 barrels per day of Iranian oil now used in this country.

Officials also called on industry to step up efforts to conserve energy and for greater efforts throughout the country to keep building temperatures at fuel-efficient levels.

"If the automobile fleet of the United States were driven three miles less per day, that would totally offset the quantity of crude that we're presently importing from Iran," one official said.

If Americans do not reduce their consumption, officials said, it could mean further price increases for gasoline and other energy products as oil companies accomodate the continued demand by buying oil on the more expensive "spot" market.

Over the past nine months gasoline prices have risen more than 31 cents per gallon and heating oil more than 30 cents.

However, officials said further price increases because of the Iran situation likely would not be great. Iran supplies a little less than 4 percent of the 18.5 million barrels of oil the United States uses daily.

Administration officials said they will call the nation's governors or their aides to Washington soon to discuss state targets for energy conservation.

Officials said other state initiatives, possibly including odd-even gasoline rationing, also will be discussed with the governors.

Carter shuts oil valve

However, Carter, facing a rising nationwide tide of frustration and outrage over the situation, has been under almost unbearable pressure to take some kind of action.

For that reason, his move Monday was seen as an attempt to put on a symbolic display of resolve behind which the American public can rally with a show of determination and sacrifice. At the same time there obviously is hope within the administration that Monday's move will deflect demands for military intervention or other drastic steps that could make the danger to the hostages more acute.

Administration officials said the cutoff of Iranian purchases had been under consideration for several days, and that soundings had been made among key members of Congress, other political and business leaders and the major U.S. oil companies to ascertain their attitudes. The response from those consulted, the officials added, had been strongly "positive and supportive."

That careful preparing of the ground appeared to be paying off Monday night in a wave of approving reaction to the president's decision.

"I'd basically follow the president's lead on this particular step," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., while campaigning in Iowa.

Westerners reported leaving Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Diplomatic efforts to free more than 60 Americans held hostage suffered a setback Monday when a high level delegation from the Palestine Liberation Organization left Iran for Kuwait, unable to negotiate the hostages release.

The first indirect international support for President Carter's oil embargo came from Mexico, which announced Monday it was temporarily closing its embassy in Iran because of "the situation prevailing in that country"

A four-paragraph Mexican Foreign Ministry statement did not specifically mention the occupation of the U.S. Embassy in Iran, nor Carter's announcement.

With diplomacy failing and the confrontation between Tehran and Washington sharpening, the quiet exodus of foreigners from Iran stepped up.

Western sources confirmed Monday night an undetermined number of American businessmen had left the country "temporarily" and more were scheduled to leave today.

On Monday, all West German bank representatives were recalled to their home bases for "consultations," sources said.

At the United Nations Monday, Iranian Charge d'Affaires Jamal Shemirani met for one hour with U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim Monday but sources at the world body would give out no details of the talks.

Little immediate impact expected

An Amoco spokesman agreed the president's action "will probably have no direct effect on our U.S. crude oil supply," but said spot market prices might go up under some circumstances.

Crude oil was selling for more than $40 a barrel on the spot market last week, while Iranian crude could be purchased for about $29, including surcharges.

U.S. importers will cope with the embargo by tapping other crude oil sources, leaving Iranian oil to foreign competitors. If the importers are forced to go to the international market for some of their oil, however, the result could be somewhat higher prices for refined products.

One oil analyst said average gasoline prices could rise 16 cents a gallon by the year's end. But Tovey said spot market prices already reflect a curtailment of Iranian oil.

Government officials, calling for stepped-up conservation measures, said the impact would be softened by record-high world petroleum product reserves.

Milt Copulos, an energy specialist with the conservative Heritage Foundation, applauded the Carter move, but expressed concern it might backfire on Japan, the largest importer of Iranian oil.

Japan imports about 600,000 barrels a day from Iran. Western Europe takes 800,000.

Are you ready to meet the challenge?

While the situation in Iran continues to make front page news, the state of the economy remains the No. 1 topic of discussion throughout America.

President Jimmy Carter's decision Monday to ban importing of Iranian oil will further depress the economy in the form of reduced oil supplies, which in turn will mean higher energy prices. Despite whatever hardships that may bring, we applaud Carter's move in view of the anti-American venom spewing from Iran.

But the fact is only Americans can bring themselves out of this economic stranglehold eating away at the nation's standard of living. Inflation is ravaging paychecks, money is tight, the housing market is depressed, interest rates are highest in the nation's history.

Meanwhile, one of the world's largest corporations, Chrysler, has laid its problems at the government's doorstep, asking for action that would prevent the company's demise. It's a sign of the times, magnified many times over.

We can all talk about the symptoms, but what's the cure?

There are no easy answers but the fact is the federal government, the Congress and the American people have got to wake up and act.

Let's stop kidding ourselves about quick-fix solutions and complicated government formulas to bring us out of the recession. Americans have to tighten their belts, roll up their shirtsleeves and return to making the nation the No. 1 producer in the world.

We've given up our economic advantage to such countries as Japan and West Germany. At the same time, we've watched the government try to fix the economy by increasing the money supply and by spending it as if there's no tomorrow. As a result, Uncle Sam has become one big handout after another. It's no wonder the incentive to work and produce in this country has been blunted.

Americans can have the best standard of living in the world (we have it today but it is slipping away) if they want it bad enough. If a personal short-term sacrifice has to be made, make it. But also demand that congressmen stop waltzing around the problems and dance to the tune of reduced spending.

The alternative is a national initiative that will force action, just as Proposition 13 did in California and the 1 percent initiative in Idaho.

Let's also put incentives — not massive tax cuts — back to work in the market place. Let's make it possible for the little guy — not just the fat cat who happens to have the dough — to invest in his and the country's future.

To get something out of this country, we have to be willing to put something into it. That's what we've forgotten, or have been prevented from doing, thanks to the malaise gripping the nation.

There's a saying that applies to today's situation: When the going gets tough, the tough get going. That's the answer.

'AH, YES! WHAT WILL THE AMUSING LITTLE CHAP THINK OF NEXT? LUCKILY FOR HIM, I NEVER PANIC IN A CRISIS, OTHERWISE I'D BE TEMPTED TO STOMP THE HELL OUT OF HIM, YES, INDEED!'

Camelot, a tragic play

BOISE — I watched the recent television special on Ted Kennedy with unexpected results. As a conservative, I had expected to have my blood boil at his liberal fulminations. As a westerner, I was prepared to bridle at his environmental excesses. I intended to discount his tendency to drown factual discussion in emotional debate.

Well, to my surprise, at the end of the hour I found myself feeling sorry for this talented but flawed human. I saw an unhappy man, unwilling or unable to put his battered inner feelings on display for further public dissection.

Senator Kennedy obviously wears the scars of the tragedies which have befallen his life: The assassination of his brothers; his faltering marriage; the unspeakable accident and his incredible explanation of it, which he can't change because it would brand him as a liar.

He seems locked into his fate. It is his job to pick up the fallen banner and move forward. He must always be tough — always the leader.

But what a price to pay! Every moment of his life is dogged by security men. Even his prized moments with the clan, all of whom he obviously loves, are programmed to fulfill the role of destiny which is cast for this lonely figure.

Since the tragic killing of his brothers his whole life is a play, and he must act out his part until the end.

Ted Kennedy loves and hates, and is sometimes sinful and sometimes noble — but he cannot show emotion. It is his mission to lead; to win; to rule.

He is the last soldier of Camelot and he is not to be envied.

Batt, a Republican, is Idaho's lieutenant governor.

The Chrysler bill

© Universal Press Syndicate

WASHINGTON — There are times, perhaps, when a good case can be made for yielding economic principle to overriding reality, but such a case has not yet been made in the matter of the pending loan guarantee for the Chrysler Corp. Unless convincing evidence in support of the bill can be presented at this week's Senate hearings, the plan should be rejected.

We ought to be clear on what is at stake. It is not the $1.5 billion guarantee as such; there is no prospect that anything approaching this sum might actually be lost to the taxpayers; if all goes well, the Lockheed experience of several years ago could be repeated, and the Treasury would even turn a small profit.

No. Something far more precious is involved. The Carter administration's bill would undermine economic principles of the highest priority, and it would set a precedent that could plague the Congress for years to come.

We identify our industrial economy in terms of "the marketplace," or "venture capitalism," or the "free enterprise system." At bottom, ours is known for short as the "profit system," but as Professor Milton Friedman recently has remarked, that shorthand term is too short. Ours is not a profit system; it is a system of profit and loss.

Everything depends upon recognition of that fundamental concept. Capital is invested under the hope of gain, but it also is invested at the risk of loss. Take the element of risk away, and what remains. Nothing but a pallid imitation of free enterprise.

This is what is here proposed. The Treasury would guarantee the repayment by Chrysler of up to $1.5 billion in loans, to be sure, the ailing company would have to raise $1.5 billion in non-guaranteed loans or in "concessions" from its unions, but Chrysler has sufficient assets to overcome this requirement.

The administration's bill effectively would put the United States government in the automobile manufacturing business. The Secretary of the Treasury would have to pass on "satisfactory" operating plans and "satisfactory" financing plans. The secretary would have to approve four-year programs of various kinds. And if the secretary should determine that Chrysler's problems in obtaining non-guaranteed credit are "the result of a failure on the part of management to exercise reasonable business prudence," the secretary shall require "such management changes as the secretary deems necessary."

What is the case in support of this extraordinary proposal? The administration says that if Chrysler went bankrupt, the collapse would have a "devastating impact" upon the company's 117,000 employees, it 4,700 dealers and its 10,000 suppliers. The Senate Banking Committee will want to receive overwhelming proof of this doomsday conjecture.

One has to sympathize, of course, with the prospective plight of the workers, but their pathetic scenario demands careful scrutiny. A reorganization under Chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act by no means requires the instantaneous shutdown of every Chrysler facility everywhere. Chrysler has about 9.3 percent of the automotive market; the company should market a million vehicles this year. The demand for this production will not evaporate if the company goes under. The demand will still be there, and its fulfillment will require, as before, workers, dealers and suppliers.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller says that Chrysler's losses, amounting to $721 million through September, present "a unique situation." Yes and no. The situation is unique in that no other major U.S. corporation (Chrysler ranks 10th among manufacturers) is now in such miserable straits. But if principle is to be sacrificed in order to save No. 10 today, what of No. 12 tomorrow? Or No. 20? Ultimately such bail-out legislation must become a matter of pure politics — and principle be damned.

If Chrysler goes the way of Hupmobile, Hudson and Nash, competition in the auto industry would be reduced. It is not a happy prospect. But if we believe in the incentive system, we must believe that the marketplace eventually will cure the evil — that new investors will appear with greater faith in the system of profit and loss than the pending bill displays.

Letters

Jesus v. Brian

Editor, Times-News:

Without going into detail about "Jesus" (my Lord and Saviour), I would like to make a few comments about W. Fawcett's letter regarding the movie "Life of Brian."

I, myself, have not seen a couple of examples of today's big box-office hits. Anyone with an ounce of love, caring or appreciation for the goodness in life, anyone who would rather the world were filled with love instead of murder, rape, robbing, incest and hate, can't possibly actually enjoy watching the bloody, gory, explicit details of today's type movies.

The few times I was exposed to this type of movie I was repulsed (and that was even before I became a Christian). Not because I'm a goody-two shoes. But because they hurt. When I see some man trapped in a Volkswagon, with a dozen giant-sized rats bashing the windows in and ripping him apart, when this kind of scene lasts for eight to ten minutes, I HURT! You go through the agony of this man in your mind and your soul cries out, "I don't want to see this!" Doesn't it? (I looked away).

Are your lusts for blood, violence, fear, demons, egotism, hate, immorality and unmeaningful sex so strong you can't even feel love, kindness, caring and compassion anymore? Things that Jesus represents.

Wouldn't you rather see movies that make you smile and walk away with a good feeling? And when you go to sleep at night wouldn't you rather have pleasant, peaceful dreams, instead of nightmares? Wouldn't you rather see movies that inspire you to make the world a better place, instead of movies that say you're possessed by a demon, or that uplift false messiahs, or that your next door neighbor is a maniac?

What this world needs is "love." One for another. And everyone who is reading this right now knows love is the answer.

As for Gler and Fawcett, judge for yourself. Which of them would you say was acting out of love and concern for their fellow man when they submitted their letters to the editor? I don't mean protecting rights, I mean on a gut level. Even the tones in the letters tell you something. Fawcett is more concerned with rights, as are many others, than the harm this kind of movie can do their fellow humans. Fawcett says this is one movie. Is it? It's one of many like it.

As for missing the point, yes, I think he has. As a Born Again Christian I know the Lord does speak directly to His people. He lives within us. And yes, I do believe, without knowing Ms. Gler, that she does have some insight that Fawcett and others don't.

However, it IS available to them in "Jesus."

W. Fawcett, are you waiting anxiously as you said you would for the gospel? I'm sure there are many Christians that would love to share it with you.

Start kicking

Editor, Times-News:

God Bless America! I have stood with tongue in cheek out as long as I can. It is time to raise my voice in protest to the premadonnas in Washington who haven't the courage to stand for America. I am referring to these incidences between Iran and their people, and their shouts against the Yankee's, who have been not only their bread and butter but have poured money into that two-bit country. We have raised the standard of living for them, educated them in our schools and stroke them gently so they won't be homesick while they are over here. I say we should ship the protesting Iranian students back to their miserable country on the first boat out. I would surmise that our beloved universities would yell for more funding to take the place of oil rich students' fees, but I say let them yell. It's about overdue for us to forget about being Mr. Nice Guy and start kicking a few people where it hurts most.

Uncharitable

Editor, Times-News:

After contemplating Mr. McKelway's article, "Freeloadrs plague program," FUNDS FOR POOR CUTBACK, in your Saturday, Nov. 3, issue I arrived at the following conclusions. Rather then making a greater effort to deny aid to the poor, transients, et. al., Salvation Army Lt. Helselman and public servant Leonard (county commissioner) should spend a few days at the Douglas Hotel under the tutelage of Mr. Ernie Vasquez. It seems to me that Mr. Vaquez offers the community more of an example of Chrstian love and charity. "If I can help one person and get ripped off by nine, I'm a happy person." We have to take the bad with the good so the good do not suffer," and more of an example of good down to earth common sense, "If they're cold and on the streets they might do something rash," than do either the lieutenant or the commissioner.

1980 politics: a schizophrenic's dream

© The Boston Globe Co.
Washington Post Writers Group

BOSTON — If you know anyone looking for a perfect motto for the 1980 campaign, give her Alfred Kahn's phrase: "Anybody who isn't schizophrenic these days just isn't thinking clearly."

Kahn was talking about the economy, but his words would fit nicely on the bumper of a political wagon.

The women's movement activists in the Democratic Party are a perfect example of Kahn's rule. They are thinking clearly about their clout and their issues. So, many are absolutely schizophrenic about their choice of candidates.

For the first time, a full 50 percent of the delegates at the Democratic National Convention are going to be female. They are likely to include women seasoned by experiences in two previous conventions, doused by reality and sprinkled by cynicism.

More to the point, they are vitally aware that this campaign is make-or-break time for a host of issues, including the ERA. Ten years of momentum in the women's movement may be riding on the campaign. So they are going into the primaries and the delegate selection process asking whether the candidate is "good on women's issues."

Exit clarity, enter schizophrenia. The two front-runners, Kennedy and Carter, are a classic study in what causes this disease.

When Carter was first a candidate, he said he wanted to be remembered as a President who brought full civil rights to women. That was impressive talk, but it hasn't quite worked out that way. Carter has lacked the spine of his commitment.

He has mishandled the women's movement leadership, misunderstood the bread-and-butter issues of women's everyday lives, and misplaced the priority he promised to give the ERA. Right after the Florida caucus victory, women at a "Salute to the ERA" night at the White House grumbled that if he had fought for the ERA as mightily as for his re-election, we would need only two more seats.

Carter has, however, done well on moving women into and up the government ladder. He has, in all probability, put more women in more important jobs and taken them more seriously (why does this still have to be said?) than any President before him.

Then you have Ted Kennedy. Kennedy has been very strong on the issues. He led the fight for the ERA extension, and pushed for legislation on health, science and economic questions.

There is, moreover, a gut feeling that if Kennedy was President, he wouldn't let a dozen state legislators stand between him and his promises. It should also be noted that he's had some first-hand experience at balancing heavy professional and family responsibilities.

On the other hand, the only women in the Kennedy inner circle are there by birthright. There is no Anne Wexler, or even any Sarah Weddington. Kennedy's press secretary said that the most powerful woman in the operation was Irene Emselem, a well-respected counsel on the judiciary committee, but a woman who has been with the senator less than a year.

Emselem's off-the-cuff response to being called most powerful was, "Me? I'm just amazed anyone recognized it." But she and other women in the office resent the general wisdom that Kennedy has "trouble dealing with women as people."

These comments persist. "He has the basic Boston Irish pol mentality toward women," says one former staffer. "He glazes whenever women talk about anything but their children," says a woman reporter. "It's not something he's personally comfortable with, Mr. Great Liberal," says a former Kennedy political worker.

To add to the Kennedy-Carter confusion still further there is "the wife issue." If Rosalynn is out front lately, it isn't an accident or a power play on her part. It is a deliberate decision by the Carter people. She is a rather stark contrast to Joan — and a subtle, constant reminder of the differences in the psyches and lifestyles of the two candidates.

This is not just a difference between "lusting in your heart" and "womanizing," but between deep and personal attitudes. As one undecided woman said: "Carter, at least, begins by thinking of his wife as an equal."

The schizophrenia then comes from having one candidate who is relatively better at dealing with women in government and personal life, and another who is relatively better and perhaps stronger on the issues.

With options like this, anyone could retire from the political business. But the campaign is young and the candidates are going to get some pretty sharp and constant reminders of the importance of the "woman vote" at the conventions.

In fact, if the women continue to think clearly, this is just maybe the year the candidates and not the electorate have to cure their schizophrenia.

Reagan readies third quest for presidential nomination

By United Press International

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan launches his third quest for the Republican presidential nomination today with polls showing his age to be the major stumbling block in finally achieving his long sought goal.

Reagan, 68, has chosen a New York City political dinner, along with a previously taped television advertisement broadcast on a network of about 90 independent television stations, to announce his candidacy.

With former President Gerald Ford out of the race, polls show Reagan the overwhelming choice among Republicans in the crowded field on 10 contenders. But the polls also show a growing concern among GOP voters over the fact that if he wins, Reagan will be 70 years old the month after his inauguration.

RONALD REAGAN
...plans vigorous campaign

"As president, I would be younger than all the heads of state I would have to deal with except (British Prime Minister) Margaret Thatcher," Reagan says when asked about the age issue.

Reagan, entering the race a confident frontrunner, purposely waited to be the last Republican to announce, and he will promise a vigorous campaign aimed at proving he is not too old to be president.

The Californian who for 13 years has been the leading spokesman for conservatives in the nation, lost the nomination by a wide margin in 1968 and to Ford by just 60 delegates in 1976.

This time his first test of strength comes Saturday and he is favored to win a non-binding straw ballot at the Florida Republican convention in Orlando.

In the race for the Democratic nomination, Sen. Edward Kennedy took a motorcade across Iowa Monday, in his first trip to the state that starts the delegate selection process next January at precinct caucuses.

Kennedy told reporters he trails President Carter in Iowa because the president has had a campaign organization working in the state for some months. He hopes to counter that with the help of former Iowa Sen. Dick Clark, who quit his State Department post recently to organize the state for Kennedy.

It was in the Iowa caucuses in 1976 that a largely unknown Carter scored his first surprise victory on the way to the Democratic nomination.

Kennedy, in the second full week of his challege to Carter, will go to Minnesota, the home state of Vice President Walter Mondale, on Wednesday.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California took his Democratic campaign to Carter's home territory, telling an Atlanta audience the president is vulnerable in the South because of the economy.

"If I can have a beachhead in Boston, I can surely have one in Atlanta," Brown said. "I don't in any way concede the south to President Carter."

He said Carter has "lost control of the economy" and recessionary pressure besetting the rest of the nation will soon be felt in the South.

Rose joins campaign across Iowa

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy's 89-year-old mother, Rose, joined him for the first time on the campaign trail Monday.

"I shall never forget this day," Mrs. Kennedy told an audience at St. Ambrose College in Davenport.

"This is the first day of my campaign. This is fun."

Mrs. Kennedy was in attendance when her son announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination Nov. 7 in Boston. Clad in a blue hat and a red print dress, she stumped across Iowa with the senator Monday.

Antacid warning rule now appears in doubt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission hearing officer Monday cast doubt on a proposed agency project to require ads for antacids to carry health warnings.

James Greenan, who presided over an initial investigation into the 1976 FTC proposal, said a "thorough examination" should be made on whether such warnings are needed and whether advertising is the place to afr them.

The FTC began investigating the possibility after the Food and Drug Administration ordered nonprescription antacids to begin including on their labels warnings about such side effects as constipation and diarrhea, and the fact that some ingredients, such as sodium, might be harmful to people with certain health conditions.

Greenan, in his report on the proposal, said the facts gathered in the investigation so far indicate that TV commercials can carry only a certain amount of information.

He noted that one product, Di-gel, carries warnings on its label involving sodium, magnesium, interactions with other drugs, a laxative side effect and advice that it be kept away from children.

"Given the fact that current TV advertising for antacid preparations generally is limited to 30-second commercials with reinforcing 10 and 15-second exposures, it becomes apparent even to the uninitiated that inclusion of some or all of these warnings will have substantial effect on this advertising," he said.

He added that data gathered by the agency so far in testimony and written submissions does not provide enough information on that point.

He said some alternate approaches deserve investigation. These include public service announcements covering the same territory; better display of warnings in the store and on packages; and the use of symbols to convey warnings in TV advertising.

The FTC staff will later issue a report on the project and the commissioners will decide, but probably not before the middle of next year, whether to pursue it.

Emergency orders relaxed

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — A state of emergency giving police wide-ranging arrest powers was lifted Monday by city officials, one day after 350 communists and sympathizers conducted a funeral march to honor five commrades killed in a bloody Nov. 3 shootout with the Ku Klux Klan and American Nazis.

"As near as we can tell the city is pretty well back to normal," said City Manager Tom Osborne. "We will have enough people on duty should that not prove to be the case."

Thirty-four people were arrested Sunday, all but one charged with misdemeanor violation of the state of emergency ban against possession of weapons outside the home.

Police said 29 people had posted $500 bond each and were released.

While most demonstrators left Greensboro, a group of five black ministers announced they will sponsor a rally in a church Sunday to show concern for what has happened in Greensboro.

Another group calling itself the "Coalition for Human Dignity" announced plans for a march through Greensboro "to give national focus for opposition to the Ku Klux Klan and Nazis and other such hate groups."

Patience pays off today for Arians whose work is interrupted frequently

GENERAL TENDENCIES: All sorts of interruptions can occur now which can keep you from getting across the plan of action you have in mind. Keep as consistent as possible while accepting the opportunities which may come through these surprise circumstances.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use patience in trying to get your work done despite annoying interruptions. Listen to the problems of a co-worker and try to help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't argue with a loved one or you create hard feelings. Find a new approach for improving your appearance. Pleasant news on the way.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Please those at home by more thoughtfulness and helpfulness. If it is hard to get a project working, now is not the right time for it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A co-worker could be confused about work, but use patience with him, her. Think logically and act likewise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure your income is greater than your outgo so that you need not worry about finances. Try to save more for the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to plan well if you are to gain personal aims. Attend social affairs but be only with trusted friends. Take no risks with health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan early how best to handle chores so that you have good results. Listen to the advice of an expert for any problems you have to solve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't push friendships when others have problems to attend to. You have personal wishes to go after, so get busy at such.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you keep at it, you accomplish much. Be more cooperative in a worthy community project. Let others know your desires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Many new situations can be handled successfully now. A new acquaintance thinks you are too old-fashioned, but laugh it off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to get into responsibilities that are hardly worthwhile, so forget them. Don't jeopardize present security.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know what associates want from you, so listen carefully. Civic matters might not work out well, so don't let it upset you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to make peace among others because of the desire to be of help. Stress the study of mathematics early in life. Sports are good here. Musical ability, also, that should be trained.

What's what

Remarriage for divorced persons matter of time

Q. How long does the average divorced woman wait to remarry? How about the average divorced man?

A. The woman, four and a half years, and the man, two and a half years. Averages don't tell it all, however. In a lot of cases, the women wait longer, because they don't have enough money to buy clothes and entertain, thus to meet prospective partners. And a certain number of men pay so much in child support or alimony they don't even consider remarriage until they're relieved of that outlay.

Q. Are minnows fit for people food? If so, how come we're not eating them?

A. That they are. They can be processed just like sardines. But they're sufficiently smaller to require the sardine canners to retool, and that said canners have not yet been willing to do. Could happen, though. Minnows are easy to raise in large volume.

Q. What proportion of the people who go bankrupt to get rid of their personal debts do it again after the legal waiting time of six years?

A. About 17 percent.

WHEELS

Numerous students of early civilizations just can't believe the wise Mayan and Aztec Indians couldn't figure out how to make big carts with wheels. That their children had toy carts with wheels is a matter of record. What these skeptical scholars believe is that the Indians who carried burdens on their backs organized into guilds, and these guilds prevented use of wheeled vehicles. Maybe so. Debate goes on.

POETS

Am asked how it is the literary lights know that four out of five of the nation's poets are women. They only surmise. Based on submissions to magazines that print such.

Scholars who profess to know claim there has never been a society in which a majority of people were left-handed.

Even though it's a man's handkerchief, chances are only one in 10 it was bought by a man.

That outdoor temperature whereat a hog is happiest is said to be 86 degrees F.

Only post office nationwide that straddles a state line is in Texarkana.

Davis starts another tour of Far East

By United Press International

SINGAPORE SAM

Sammy Davis Jr. is taking another crack at the East, and this time he means to complete the tour. Said he, at his Singapore debut during the weekend, "I did not come here to make money. I came here because I want to be here." Davis says he's always been fascinated by Asia, and he tried to see it once before, in 1971. That tour was canceled, however, when he came down with a sudden attack of hepatitis. He's performing now with Philippine cabaret star Belinda Jimerez.

THE CAMPUS KID

It's standing room only whenever Bob Hope plays the halls of ivy, so a special, "Bob Hope on Campus," was a natural. NBC-TV will air it Nov. 19, with scenes shot at six colleges — including the University of Southern California. In the USC segment, Hope gets a parking ticket from Eric Estrada of "CHiPs" — probably in youthful vengeance for beating out John Travolta and Robert Redford in a recent popularity poll of teen-aged girls by Seventeen magazine.

PORTER LIVES

Cole Porter, who died five years ago at the age of 73, lived again in spirit Sunday night on Broadway in a special tribute that marked Dick Cavett's singing and dancing debut. Cavett — who donned a tux and red cowboy boots to sing "Don't Fence Me In" — was joined by such established stars as Elaine Stritch, Gretchen Wyler, Len Carlou, Lucie Arnaz, Helen Gallagher and golden oldie, Anne Francine. Proceeds went to the American Musical and Dramatic Academy.

DINAH'S FRIENDS

Dinah Shore brings her talk show to New York this week. She'll take over the Terrace Room at Central Park's Tavern on the Green to tape segments for "Dinah" — which usually is produced on the West Coast. Among guests for her invasion of the Big Apple — "Sugar Babies" star Ann Miller, Robert Klein of Broadway's "They're Playing Our Song," Tony Randall, David Hartman, Lucie Arnaz, Shana Alexander, Chita Rivera, and the new heavyweight champ — Larry Holmes.

MISSING THE MARK

Screenwriter Ron Darby should stick to screenwriting — and the U.S. Mail. He didn't come off too well Sunday as a skydiver. Darby wanted Hugh Hefner to read his new script and decided to deliver it by parachute. But he missed the palatial Playboy mansion, landing instead at the nearby Los Angeles Country Club. Police, who found him wandering around on the golf course, say they're checking to see if he broke any laws. Hefner still hasn't seen the screenplay.

DAY OF THE EAGLE

It was something right out of a Hollywood nature-gone-mad flick. Bernard Bulle battling a giant eagle in the back yard of his home in Besancon, France. The fight began when the eagle — with a 6½-foot wing span — grabbed Bulle's dog. Bulle went to the rescue and found his hands full. Neighbors joined the fray, rescuing the dog and Bulle, who wound up with serious lacerations on his face and arms. The eagle is doing time for its sins — at the city zoo.

Bridal couple ends up in intensive care unit

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Kenneth Burke and his bride, Donna, spent their honeymoon in a hospital intensive care unit Monday after tumbling six stories off an apartment terrace while posing for a picture.

Burke, 39, was in critical condition at Yale-New Haven Hospital with multiple facial fractures, a skull fracture, hip fracture, a dislocated hip and injuries to the spleen and liver.

Mrs. Burke, 30, was in serious condition with a broken left arm and injuries to the spine and hip.

They were posing for a picture at their wedding reception at Mrs. Burke's Edgewater Tower apartment Saturday night when they slipped off a balcony ledge and fell 72 feet onto a grassy patch, missing a brick wall by a few inches.

Police Chief Salvatore Malinconico said the Burkes wanted a final snapshot with the city lights in the background. He said the groom apparently was helping his wife seat herself on the wall when he lost his balance.

"She might have pushed him a little bit, and then he grabbed her and they both went over," Malinconico said. "They were very fortunate they landed in the grass section, not the cement section. They would've been killed."

The spill was witnessed by Burke's brother Kevin, of Fort Lee, N.J., who was looking through the viewfinder of his camera, waiting to snap the picture. Other wedding guests were inside the apartment.

Togetherness prevails

ROSENBERG, Texas (UPI) — Five men dressed in ponchos and karate pants, each identifying himself as a member of the "Christ" family, took turns driving their van without a license so they all could go to jail together.

Patrolman Andy Walters said he stopped the van with Arizona license plates Saturday night in search of a missing person. The driver, who identified himself as St. James Christ, had no license.

When Walters took the man into custody, the other four in the van — St. Duncan, St. Joseph No. 1, St. Joseph No. 2 and St. James No. 2 — insisted they would accompany St. James No. 1 to the Fort Bend County Jail.

None of the men had a driver's license, so each took a turn at the wheel to get arrested. Each drove the van from the parking lot onto Avenue H and back into the parking lot where he was duly charged.

The men described themselves as "non-violent people," "preachers," and "vegetarians," and refused to eat jail food, police said. They at first refused real names and gave one address, a post office box in Blythe, Calif.

They sang "Michael Row the Boat Ashore" several times en route to jail.

The men finally were identified as Robin James Backhaus, 24, of Tucson, Ariz., and James Kostelnik, 35, James Welsh, 19, Roger Butler, 31, and Duncan Lucier, 24, no addresses available.

Backhaus was released Sunday after his father paid his $203.50 traffic bond, O'Neal said.

Fireman home, waits for new heart

BOSTON (UPI) — Retired fireman Fred Kelly, back home again in Massachusetts, is not bitter that Stanford University doctors say he will have to wait from 6 to 10 months before he can get the transplanted heart he needs to live.

Kelley, a 39-year-old father of five, returned from the West Coast Saturday, after being tested at Stanford as a possible transplant candidate. Tests determined he was not yet ready for the operation.

Kelley said he felt "pretty good," even though doctors have told him his own weakened heart may last only another year. He said he is taking medication to keep him alive until doctors declare him ready for the transplant.

"I'm still alive, aren't I? Why be bitter?" he said.

7 Ways to Beat Laziness Before It Beats You

Maybe, like most people, you have plenty of energy for the things you really like to do — it's getting the other stuff done that's the problem. Learn the seven ways to beat those delaying tactics. But there's more to laziness than meets the shut-eye. There may be psychological reasons for procrastination. Read about this fascinating roadblock to doing in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY. This winter when it rains cats and dogs, make sure your home doesn't get full of "poodles."

City dweller needs privacy

© Chicago Sun-Times

Privacy is one of the city dweller's biggest needs. To meet that need, some folks will go to great extremes, such as building solid board fences.

But fences only give privacy to a height of six or seven feet. Two-story privacy must come from planting trees and shrubs which grow tall.

One tree frequently used for that purpose is, unfortunately, the Lombardy poplar. It grows quickly, but within two or three years large sections start to die as they become diseased with cankers. The tree usually dies within 12 years.

There is a worthy solution to the privacy problem, although not a budget-priced one. Plant a selection of columnar trees—trees shaped like the Lombardy poplar that don't have its drawbacks. They are healthy and long-lived.

The same tree shapes once were promoted in towns along the East Coast as street trees because their shapes do not interfere with sidewalk or street traffic, nor their tops with utility lines.

In the nursery catalogs the tall, slender tree varieties will be called fastigiate, columnar, ascending, upright or sentry types.

Roof most important thing in warding off Old Man Winter

With Old Man Winter due to arrive in just a short while, homeowners must begin preparing their homes for nature's onslaught. Because once the cold winds begin to blow and temperatures drop, not only will it be too uncomfortable to go outside, but it might be next to impossible to get someone to make needed repairs.

Undoubtedly, the most important thing between you and the elements is your roof. And if it's not in satisfactory shape, you'll likely have the Great Outdoors indoors before too long.

Roofing experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute recommend that you start to inspect your roof from the inside of the house. Since roofing leaks are one of the most obvious signs of trouble, a trip to the attic on a rainy day makes good sense.

Once you're up in the attic, look for any dripping; and just as important, check to see if there are any "water marks" on the underside of the roof. If moisture is accumulating on this wooden sheathing, that's the beginning of possible trouble because structural damage is then a strong possibility. A qualified roofing contractor should be brought in immediately to assess the situation.

After you've completed an inspection of the underside of your roof, it's time to go outside. Your first step should be from the ground up.

Take along a pair of binoculars and perform a general inspection. Scan the roof for obvious signs of wear, like excessive loss of the mineral granules which cover the shingles. If you find that some of your shingles are worn down to their felt interior, your roof is on its last leg and so is your first line of defense. Curling or cupping of your roofing shingles is another warning that a new roof will soon be needed.

Some of the other things the CertainTeed experts say you should be on the lookout for are faulty "flashings". the metal surfaces around the bottom of your chimney, vents and other things that poke through the roof. Check to see that these are tight-fitting and rust-free. A piece of loose flashing can trap water and permit it to seep into the wooden structure below the roof, causing some serious problems.

When your ground-up inspection is complete, you're ready for the next step — up your ladder. Be extremely careful climbing your ladder, and when up there, look along the roof edges for signs of underlying structural damage. Eaves are especially subject to decay because of their constant exposure to external moisture. To test them for soundness, try poking them with a screwdriver; if they're soft or soggy, replacement will be necessary.

While you're up on the ladder, you might also inspect your roof gutters. Make sure they're free of leaves and debris, so water can pass freely. Clogging here is not only a problem with rainwater runoff, but in subfreezing temperatures, ice dams can form which could damage the shingles near the eaves.

Preventive maintenance is as important with your home as it is with your car. If you nip potential problems in the bud, it can literally save you thousands of dollars that might otherwise go to structural and roofing repairs. And in today's economy, that's a price no one can afford.

For more free information on roofing, including the modern products that are available, and how to avoid problems before they begin, write the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482.

Starting new plants fun for gardeners

By Richard DeLanc
© Chicago Sun-Times

One of the most delightful aspects of growing houseplants is starting new ones. The Kalanchoe, or Air Plant, makes this pleasure unusually easy. Notches in all the leaves bear scores of tiny, fully-formed plants.

This characteristic gives it a third, much exaggerated name: Mother of Thousands. To complete its complement of names, it also is known as Bryophyllum and Devil's Backbone.

The plant comes from the tropics. It is assumed that it grows at high elevations, because it thrives at temperatures hovering around 50 degrees at night, and a mere 70 to 72 degrees during the day.

But first, more on propagating the little plantlets. Once they are ripe, they are jarred loose by the least amount of pot movement. Those that drop to the soil quickly take root and form a thick copse at the mother plant's base.

The plants can be separated when repotting the mother plant and can be potted in their own containers. A solid compact growth is most desired, so do not fertilize the new plant for six months after repotting. Then continue to fertilize only at six-month intervals.

An easier way to propagate the plant is to remove a leaf loaded with plantlets and place it on a soil surface.

If they have not done so already, the plants will develop rootlets that will penetrate the soil. Meanwhile, the mother leaf will provide the energy and moisture for the little plants to develop. Water them about once a week.

As the plantlets develop, the mother leaf shrivels and dries. The little plantlets can then be transplanted farther apart.

The mother plant should be watered only when the soil surface is quite dry. Too much water will cause the leaves to drop. Furthermore, if the plantlets are to develop, the plant must have four hours of full sunlight a day. A period of full sun also is necessary to make the plant bloom.

In addition to full sun, Kalanchoe must have a long night to trigger flowering. For four weeks, keep it in complete darkness from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. You will be rewarded with white, red, rose, pink, yellow or orange flowers, depending on the variety.

One caution about the plant: As with guinea pigs or white mice, you may find yourself with more babies than you can handle.

Dear Abby

Marriage is worth $25,000

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© The Chicago Tribune-
N.Y. News Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 24-year-old woman with an important decision to make. I met a very wealthy man who wants to marry me. He bet me $25,000 to $1 that I would NOT marry him before Christmas Day, 1979! (That means if I marry him, he has to give me $25,000.)

I fly with a big airline and met him three months ago while flying. He's a perfect gentleman, great company, and knows how to treat a woman. He refuses to tell me how old he is, but he looks about 75.

He says he can give me everything I want but sex, and if I marry him he wouldn't mind if I got myself a boyfriend as long as I was home every day by 6 p.m.

He's been married five times and has three grown children and seven grandchildren. He says all I have to do is sign an agreement stating that if he dies while we're married, I am entitled to only $1 million. His family gets the rest. Also, if HE wants out of the marriage, HE will pay me $10,000 for every month I've lived with him. But if I want out, I get nothing. In the meantime, he agrees to provide me with a car of my choice, all the clothes I want, and $1,000 a month pocket money.

How does this deal sound to you?

IN THE CLOUDS

DEAR IN THE CLOUDS: It sounds like a business deal. I suggest you retain your own lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: Many people write to you complaining because they sent a gift "six months ago," and never received a thank-you for it.

Why don't these people telephone (or write) to the person they sent it to and ask if the gift was ever received? (If it was, and they neglected to acknowledge it, they deserve to be embarrassed.)

There is always a chance that the gift was NOT received. I work in the department of the post office where packages are undeliverable because the address a) has "fallen" off or b) has become smudged and cannot be read or c) is incomplete, wrong or illegible. And, worse yet, there is no return address on the package.

Also, when a package is returned to the store because it cannot be delivered, the card may read, "From Uncle Ted and Aunt Mary," and they have no way of knowing WHO bought it!

Abby, with the holidays coming up, tell your readers to PLEASE include their full names and addresses INSIDE as well as OUTSIDE of every package. And don't sit around for six months wondering if the gift ever got there.

HELPFUL

DEAR HELPFUL: Thank you for a valuable reminder.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to GOLFING GRANDPA whose wife requires sex to "relax" her the night before she plays golf:

My husband is a golfer, and he claims there are three rules to follow to assure him of a good score: No drinking, no sex, and plenty of sleep the night before.

I would like to ask GOLFING GRANDPA how HIS game is the day after he accommodates his wife to improve HER game.

SEXLESS GOLF WIDOW, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the poem in your column about the hostess who was tired of uninvited guests flocking to her "nice little house at the beach."

My mother, Sylvia Lewis Kinney, and I are chortling because she wrote that poem! It was published in 1962 in a book of her poetry, titled, "The Valiant Flea."

Mother isn't angry. In fact, she thinks it's marvelous and funny to have found fame 17 years later in the DEAR ABBY column.

SALLY KINNEY MENZLAU

Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Rhode Island program inspires attempt for house doctor plan

WASHINGTON — A highly successful program designed to evaluate the energy conservation quality of Rhode Island homes has inspired renewed attempts for federally mandated "house doctor" programs.

A two-year-old program built around a state-wide, non-profit corporation called Rhode Islanders Saving Energy (Rise) has indicated that business can work with local government to cut energy usage on a wide scale.

Rise has attracted the support of Sen. John H. Chaffee, R-R.I., and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who this week were seeking to include an amendment to Senate energy legislation that would set up pilot house doctor programs in 10 states.

Created by Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy and then-Textron chairman G. William Miller, who was its first chairman, Rise has already been asked to audit about 5,000 homes in Rhode Island.

The free audits involve a 2 1-2 hour inspection by salaried Rise auditors known as house doctors. The homeowner receives a detailed written analysis and recommendations for specific conservation steps, services, products, brands and installers.

Rise also works with the local banks, which supply auditors with forms for special reduced-rate weatherization loans.

More than 50 percent of those homeowners who have been audited by Rise have spent an average of $1,500 on weatherization and solar installation, and have the highest compliance rate of any such program in the nation.

Most of the work has been insulation for windows and doors. About half of those who have been audited and who have chosen to have work done have used installers recommended by Rise. The remainder used their own contractors to do the recommended work.

According to Rise official Larry Klaus, head of Development Management Consultants, a Boston housing consulting firm, the program has succeeded because of the support it has received from the business community.

Rake leaves against your house foundation for insulation, but cover with weighted tarp.

Turn thermostat down to cut costs

By BARBARA McDOWELL
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The simplest way to cut your heating bills this winter is to turn down your thermostat to 65 degrees during the day and 55 degrees at night.

But do not do so if your household includes babies, senior citizens, people with circulatory problems or people taking certain medications, such as phenothiazines for anxiety or nausea. Then keep the temperature at 68 or above at all times.

Here are more suggestions for reducing heating costs:

— When did you last have your heating system serviced? Oil and coal furnaces should be cleaned and checked every year; gas furnaces can wait up to three years.

— If you have an oil furnace, make sure the service person checks its firing rate. The Energy Department found that 97 percent of the furnaces tested in a recent survey fired inefficiently.

— Check heating ducts or pipes for leaks once a year. Once any leaks are sealed, insulate ducts or pipes located in unheated areas of the house, such as attic and basement. The 2-inch-thick insulation blankets are recommended for the job.

— If you have forced-air heat, clean or replace air filters every month or two during the heating season.

— If you have steam heat, drain a bucket of water from the boiler every month it is in use. That keeps the boiler free of sediment that could otherwise insulate it from the burner.

— If you have hot-water heating, learn from service personnel how to drain and flush your boiler and "bleed" air from your pipes. Those chores should be done once or twice a year.

— Dust or vacuum radiators and heating vents regularly to eliminate the grime that can impede heat flow.

— Close off unoccupied rooms and shut their heating vents. Also close closet doors.

— Keep windows and doors near your thermostat tightly closed so that your heating system will not continue working long after the rest of the house has reached 65 degrees.

— Cut the number of trips you make into and out of the house.

— Check that furniture, draperies and debris are not blocking radiators, registers or heating units.

— Are some rooms too hot while others are too cold? Then your heating system needs to be balanced. Try adjusting valves or registers to achieve a uniform temperature throughout the house. If that doesn't work, consult a heating-cooling specialist.

— Lower the thermostat when your house will be unoccupied, whether for a day or a month. But don't let the temperature fall so low that your pipes freeze.

— Rake fall leaves against your foundation for insulation. Cover the leaves with a weighted tarp to prevent moisture from seeping through them into the house.

— Consider planting evergreen trees or shrubs on the north side of your house for protection from winter winds. You might wish to plant deciduous — leaf-losing — varieties on the west and south to shade the house in summer and admit light in winter.

— Open draperies, shades, blinds or shutters during the day to take advantage of solar heat. Close them at night to reduce heat loss through the glass.

— If buying or sewing new draperies, opt for lined ones made from closely woven fabrics. They should close completely and extend over the window frames on all sides.

— Debating between wallpaper and paint? Wallpaper — especially the plastic variety — is more energy-efficient as it provides a small layer of insulation. Rugs and carpets also have some insulation value.

— Make sure the chimney damper is closed when there is no fire in the fireplace.

— You can lose warm air through the chimney even when a fire is blazing. The Energy Department suggests reducing that loss by lowering the thermostat to 50 or 55 degrees when a fire is burning, installing a thermal-glass front to the fireplace, or closing doors and warm-air ducts to the room with the fireplace while opening a window near the fireplace about an inch.

— If you hate waking up to a cold house, consider buying a clock thermostat that automatically turns the heat down at night and up in the morning.

— Stay comfortable at 65 degrees by dressing warmly in closely woven fabrics. Women should choose pants over skirts.

Wear several lightweight layers instead of one heavy garment; those layers trap air that insulates the body against heat loss. Two light sweaters add 5 degrees of warmth while one heavy sweater adds only 3.7 degrees.

— To keep warm at night, select knit blankets — especially those of wool or acrylic yarns — over woven blankets. Two thin blankets or a quilt will usually keep you warmer than one thick blanket.

— If your heating system is at least 10 years old, you might make up rather quickly the cost of replacing it with a more efficient system. Get several estimates of how much a new system would cost and how much fuel it could save.

When shopping for that new system, consider such innovations as automatic electric ignition, which eliminates the need for a constantly burning pilot flame on a gas furnace, and electric heat pumps, which extract warmth from outside air even on cool days and transfer it into the house.

Wallpaper covers sags

By Bruce Sears
© Chicago Sun-Times

Q. This may be a tall order, but perhaps you can help. I'm a single girl on my own in my very first apartment. To say the walls are in bad shape is generous. They are bumpy and cracked and seem to be irregularly out of square. I'm on a very limited budget, but would love to hang wall covering. My question is: Can I, under the circumstances? And if so, what type and how do I proceed? Also, I thought of purchasing second-hand furniture or "unpainted" furniture and perhaps covering it with the same, or co-ordinating, wall coverings. Any suggestions? — N.N.

A. Never mind if your walls are somewhat irregular. All of us may tend to sag with age. For walls, at least, there's a solution. The newer, heavier coverings can roll right over most minor bumps and hairline cracks. As always, of course, you'll be happier with the final effect if you take care preparing the wall surface before the covering goes up. That means scraping peeling paint and patching moderate cracks in the wall surface. If the area already has been papered, you usually can hang right over the first layer, provided the covering's edges are flat and smooth and it's paper, not vinyl.

In any case, textured and embossed wallcoverings can cover a multitude of wall sins — doin it best if they're dramatically patterned. Two other bits of advice about rough walls: Avoid metallics here—they will highlight irregularities underneath; and investigate the easy-to-apply undercoverings now on the market. Hang them first, and you smooth out the wall so effectively that any covering can glide right over.

Stocks leap on oil embargo

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Carter's decision to ban Iranian oil imports scored on Wall Street Monday as the stock market staged its biggest rally in nearly two months.

Veterans' Day holiday trading was slow, however.

"Carter beat (Ayatollah Ruhollahr Khomeini to the punch," said William LeFevre, Grainger & Co. vice president. "The market thought it was better for Carter to cut off the imports than for Iran to impose an embargo," said Newton Zinder, E.F. Hutton vice presideint.

Another big factor in the rally was the fact that some investors believe interest rates, now at record rates, may be near a peak since the nation's money supply has declined a bit recently.

Against this background, the Dow Jones industrial average, an 8.87-point winner Friday, climbed 15.45 points to 821.93, the biggest gain since it jumped 17.24 points Sept. 20.

A 12.46-point loser last week, the Dow was off about 100 points in the past month and many stocks were selling at bargain prices. That was yet another factor in the rally.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 1.08 to 58.82 and the price of a share gained 55 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,113 to 380, among the 1,847 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

But NYSE volume totaled only 26,640,000 shares, down from the 30,060,000 traded Friday. Both The NYSE and the American Stock Exchanges observed two minutes of silence in honor of Veterans' Day. Government offices and many banks were closed for the semiholiday and this kept turnover down.

Within minutes of Carter's decision, Iran announced an embargo while holding 60 American hostages in the U.S. embassy students seized eight days ago. Carter has refused Iranian demands to deport deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi from a New York hospital.

Carter during the weekend ordered the deportation of Iranian students illegally residing in this country.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 27,558,320 shares, compared with 32,341,240 Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index soared 4.35 to 213.09 and the price of a share climbed 32 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ composite OTC index gained 1.19 to 137.05.

Oil stocks generally paced the rally, but Charter Co. of Jacksonville, Fla., was one firm that did not participate. Its stock fell 1⅛ to 36⅞. The company has a large contract with Iran to supply oil for Charter's 500,000-barrel-a-day refinery at Freeport, Bahamas.

A spokesman for Charter said refinery operations should not be affected by the Carter action because the Iranian oil it gets is received in Europe, not the United States. California Standard, which has a 50 percent interest in the refinery, climbed 2⅝ to 57⅝.

At 4 p.m., Gulf Oil was the third most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 to 34¼. Mobil Corp., fourth, gained ¾ to 50½. Texaco, which reported more natural gas in a Baltimore Canyon well, climbed 1⅝ to 29⅝ in active trading.

Among the other oils, Atlantic Richfield climbed 4¼ to 77⅝, Ohio Standard 4¼ to 80½, Superior Oil 9 to 119½, and Cities Service, Conoco, Exxon, Getty, Mountain Fuel Supply, Natomas and Occidental a point or more each.

IBM was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up ½ to 62⅛, Goodyear Tire & Rubber followed, off ⅛ to 12⅞ in trading that included a block of 200,000 shares at 12¾.

Honda Motors, which gained 4¼ points Friday, fell 2¼ to 26. The company denied rumors it would soon begin exports of a new fuel efficient car to Brazil.

Lubrizol, which makes oil additives, pushed ahead 2 to 53½.

Cincinnati Milacron advanced 1⅝ to 23¾. The company late Friday announced it was raising its quarterly dividend payout to 20 cents a share from 16¼ cents. The firm's third-quarter earnings soared to $1.20 a share from 61 cents a year ago.

Smaller sheep herds close to home profitable in Idaho

PARMA (UPI) — A growing number of sheep ranchers is discovering raising smaller herds at home is as profitable as running thousands of animals across the state's mountains and plains.

Stuart Cruickshank, chairman of the Idaho Wool Growers Association, is one of those who believe "small is profitable."

For 40 years Cruickshank's family ran sheep from their Parma homestead up to the Middle Fork of the Salmon River and over to 20,000 acres of deeded land near Cascade. Ten years ago, Cruickshank turned in his range rights and brought his herds home for good.

"The interference of environmentalists and the government and the hassle — it just got to the point where it wasn't worth it," he said.

Sheep ranchers have been faced with stiffer government regulations over labor and predator control. In 1972, they were forced by law to stop using 1080, a chemical used to kill coyotes. Sheepmen claim lamb losses have been high with the restrictions on coyote killing.

At the same time, the Basque labor supply on which the industry has depended has dried up and ranchers must now hire Mexicans and Peruvians in accordance with a costly set of U.S. Labor Department regulations.

Between the 1963 and 1978 sheep numbers decreased by more than 50 percent, from 29 million to 12 million, for an average annual decline of 7 percent.

Meanwhile, sheep producers allowed the market to dry up and wool sales fell sharply. In 1963, the average American ate five pounds of lamb which fell to 1.7 pounds in 1977. Wool production declined by more than half, from 261 million pounds in 1963 to 109 million pounds in 1977.

Then in the mid-70s, restaurant owners suddenly were willing to pay good prices for lamb. The decline in sheep numbers nearly leveled off.

The average farm flock numbers about 50 and are used as a secondary income by farmers, ranchers and others. The key to the success of smmll flocks is minimal expenses.

For each herder he doesn't hire, Cruickshank said he saves between $480 to $700 a month in salary plus room, board and other benefits.

On the other hand, feed costs him $55 a day, compared with $7 a day he would pay for grazing rights.

Delamar mine interest sold

BOISE (UPI) — Earth Resources Co. is in the process of selling its mining division, including a 52.5 percent interest in the Delamar mine near Jordan Valley, Ore.

The firm has signed a letter of intent to sell the division to a Canadian Mining Group for $28 million. Earth Resoucres, Dallas, Tex., and Dome Exploration U.S. Ltd. are working on a final sales contract, which must be ratified by directors of both companies.

The Texas company wants to concentrate on the oil refining business, according to Bill Cole, Earth Resources Mining Division vice president Dome Exploration U.S. Ltd. is owned by Dome Mines Limited, Campbell Red Lake Ltd. and Sigma Mines Ltd, all affiliated Canadian companies.

Dome mines owns controlling interest in the other two companies and Dome officers work for the two companies. It is the largest North American gold mining company.

Dome Mines owns 50 percent of Dome Exploration U.S., Campbell owns 40 percent The Delamar mine, located just inside Idaho near the Oregon border, employs about 175 people.

Cole said there would be no change in management or staff once the sale is completed, probably by the end of the year.

Earth Resorces Mining Division includes the 52.5 percent interest in the Delamar Mines, an idle cooper mine in New Mexico, patents, equipment and an office in Golden, Colo.

The mining division also has been involved in mineral exploration in the West, Cole said.

The remaining 47.5 percent interest in the Delamar mine is owned by the Superior Oil Co. and Canadian Superior Mining Co. Ltd.

Dome Mines President Malcolm Paschereau said the mining group has made no offer to Superior Oil officials for the remaining interest in the mine, nor are there any plans to make an offer.

Delamar has been produced about 19,000 ounces of gold and 2 million ounces of silver since it was reopened in 1977. The mine is the country's third largest silver mine, and the world's largest open pit silver mine. Only the Galena and Sunshine mines in northern Idaho are larger.

Extraction key oil shale problem

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The West's rich oil shale deposits hold enough petroleum reserves to help the nation overcome part of its dependence on imports, but extraction of the trapped oil is far from being solved.

Dr. H.Y. Sohn, University of Utah professor of fuels engineering and metallurgy, said the answers should be found "before the nation exhausts its crude oil reserves."

But Sohn said research and development programs must be intensified. "While a great deal of research has been carried out on the conversion of coal to gaseous and liquid fuels, less work has been done on the extraction of oil from shale."

The university researcher, working with a $250,000 U.S. Energy Department grant, is attempting to develop a method of heating the shale in the ground and then pumping the crude petroleum to the surface.

He said underground heating may "eventually pave the way toward commercial development of the up to 700 billion barrels of readily recoverable oil locked in shale rock in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming."

"Oil shale is a huge, dormant resource awaiting the nation's commitment to its development," he said.

Surface methods of extracting the oil from shale rock would require large supplies of water, and create waste rock disposal problems. "For example, daily production of 1 million barrels of oil from shale would require the daily mining of 1.5 million tons of shale rock."

Sohn said the underground extraction method he is investigating involves the mining of about one-fifth of the total shale resource.

Airline secures own oil

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — Paiute Oil and Mining Corp. has signed a series of agreements with Western Airlines under which the airline will help finance the Utah firm's oil well developments in exchange for jet fuel supplies.

Paiute President R.J. Pinder said Western has advanced his company $250,000 to develop a producing oil well in northeastern Utah's Duchesne County. The agreements allow the airline first call on all crude oil produced by Paiute.

The oil would be sent to refineries in the West to assure the airline "availability of turbine fuels for its aircraft," according to Pinder.

He said Western has also contracted to advance additional sums as Paiute completes future oil wells. The firm has 60 additional drilling sites covered by the Western agreement.

Pinder also said the arrangement provides that Western can participate in future joint ventures with Paiute on another 31 Utah oil wells.

Health money helpful

© Field Enterprises, Inc.

As perhaps no other people in the world, we in the U.S. believe that money will conquer the misery of disease, and bring better health. Thus, we give ever-rising amounts to health charities, hospitals and other non[illegible]t health organizations $5.4 billion in 1978 alone. Where does all this money go, how well is it spent?

Of the total, an estimated $1.3 billion went for personal health services, and about $1 billion each went to hospitals and the so-called voluntary health agencies (American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, National Foundation-March of Dimes). The 20 largest national health agencies alone accounted for about half of all the donations.

Startlingly enough, there seems to be little correlation between our donations and the seriousness or prevalence of the diseases, Carl Bakal notes in his new "Charity, U.S.A." (Times Books, $16.95). Thus, while mental illness ranks as our No. 1 health problem, affecting 32 million of us, the Mental Health Association ranks No. 12 in our donations to health agencies. A full four times as much goes to help our 200,000 victims of muscular dystrophy.

Similarly, the American Cancer Society, No. 1 money-getter, attracts about 70 percent more contributions than the American Heart Association, second largest agency — although two and one-half times more of us die from heart disease (which also is 10 times more prevalent than cancer).

Why? Psychological factors, suggests Bakal. "Even though heart disease is more prevalent, cancer raises money because it is feared more," he explains. "On the other hand, people are reluctant to give to causes like mental illness and epilepsy because they can't — or don't want to — identify with these ailments."

The skill of fund raisers is another crucial element. The Muscular Dystrophy Asssociation's No. 4 ranking has benefited mightily from the annual telethons put on in its behalf.

Bakal also wryly points out that the three leading users of the telethon — United Cerebral Palsy, the National Easter Seal Society, Muscular Dystrophy — are all concerned with crippled children.

Enormous as our donations for health seems, they still represent only a tiny fraction — 2 to 3 percent — of what is now spent on medical care, including research, in this country.

The American Cancer Society's current annual expenditures of $36 million just for research, for instance, are dwarfed by the $800 million Congress now gives annually to the government's National Cancer Institute. And United Cerebral Palsy's annual research expenditures of $1 million-plus are puny compared to the recent federal annual research expenditures of $18 million to fight the same disease.

With all this government money available, does it really make sense, then, to give to the voluntary health agencies at all? What, if anything, do they actually achieve with the contributions they get?

The answer, of course, will vary from agency to agency, and Bakal evaluates the performance of the four dozen most important health agencies in terms of their principal basic functions: research, direct patient aid, community services, public and professional education.

He is dubious about the research achievements of some. (The Arthritis Foundation has spent $40 million during the past 30-odd years to support arthritis research but aspirin is still the No. 1 drug for combating arthritic pain and inflammation.) He is skeptical, too, about the claims of many agencies that their educational efforts have created a measurably increased public awareness of the dangers or danger signals of specific diseases.

The extent of the aid available to patients is often exaggerated as well. All too frequently, the offer of help is nothing more than a referral to community agencies which, in turn, are often unable to help. And where care actually is provided, Bakal accuses, it may duplicate that already available from other community resources or be of questionable quality.

But Bakal praises some agency activities — particularly, the American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery Program, which counsels newly-operated mastectomy victims, and Planned Parenthood's work in preventing unwanted pregnancies.

And he acknowledges that many agencies have been a "useful goad" in prodding government to spend as much as it does on medical research and rehabilitation and other patient services — for example, the kidney dialysis and transplant expenses now assumed by Medicare.

In sum: Before you give a penny to a specific charity, investigate how well it carries out the functions it claims to perform.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat, corn, oats and soybeans were substantially higher at the close Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was up 6 to 9½ cents; corn up 3 to 4; oats up 3 to 4¾; and soybeans up 10 to 15 cents.

President Carter's announced cutoff of Iranian oil apparently boosted the soybean market and gave carryover support to wheat.

Wheat also closed substantially higher on reports of damage in the Brazilian wheat crop.

Soybeans gained some support from light country selling.

Corn closed substantially higher but not with the gains of wheat or soybeans. The market was boosted by shortcovering and technical buying but was pressured by significant country selling before the opening and during the session, although the movement was not as high as many anticipated.

The outside markets were higher.

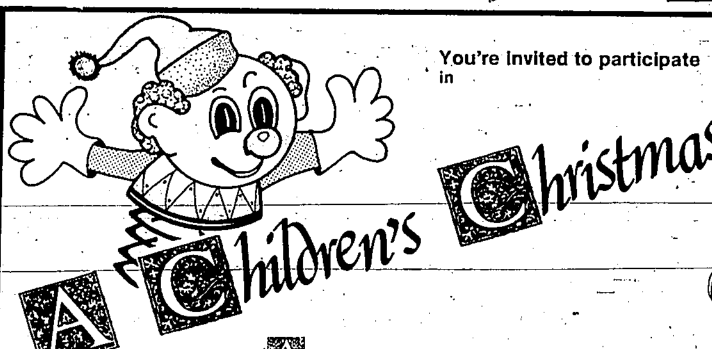
You're invited to participate in



Anyone can enter . . . adults and children alike. You do not have to be a Bank of Idaho customer.

Here's how it works:

Make a hand crafted toy for Christmas. There is no restriction on size, material or design of toys; the only requirement is that it be handmade. Enter as many toys as you wish.

All toys must be delivered to your nearest branch of Bank of Idaho by Thursday, November 29th. Judging of the toys will be on Friday, November 30 and winners announced that afternoon. Participants are encouraged to donate the toys although this is not a requirement. All toys donated will be distributed to deserving children in each community by a suitable charitable organization which regularly conducts such distribution programs at Christmastime.

All toys will be on display at the branch where they were entered until Friday, December 21st.

Bank of Idaho employees and their immediate families are not eligible to win prizes.

You may win A PRIZE!

Soviets admit energy shortage

MOSCOW (UPI) — In a sharp departure from past statements, the Soviet Union Monday admitted it is confronting an energy shortage and called on citizens to be "strict" in conserving oil and coal during the harsh Russian winter ahead.

A front-page editorial in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda laid much of the blame for the situation on state-run ministries charged with planning coal and oil production, and on the manufacturers of heavy equipment for drilling and mining.

The stark admission that the Soviet Union has an energy problem represented an about-face from previous claims that it would never suffer a U.S.-type "energy crisis."

The editorial, which mirrors government opinion, blamed the Ministries of Coal and Oil Industries, which it said, "make serious mistakes in planning and control of production and using capital investments."

This contrasts sharply with previous government statements that energy shortages are a product of capitalistic economies only, and that Soviet energy resources are plentiful.

Recently released reports indicate that the Soviet coal and oil production figures have been disappointing.

The CIA this year released a long-range prediction that by 1982 the Soviet Union, now an oil exporter, would become a net importer.

Drought, famine threaten India

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The worst drought in 60 years could force India to eat through its entire food stockpile and face nationwide famine, for the second time in six years, officials said Monday.

Reports of hunger and near-starvation were increasing across the nation of 550 million.

Officials reported many areas were without drinking water and cattle were on the verge of death in parched grasslands. In some districts, villagers were foraging for roots and pawning jewelry to buy food, according to reports reaching the government.

Much land had hardened into a dry, solid crust and fields lay unplowed, the reports said.

Fuel shortages idled irrigation pumps, worsening the problem.

Total food reserves have been put at 19 million tons, but summer crop losses were estimated at nearly 12 million tons. The government hoped to bridge the gap with the winter crop but the rains still have not appeared and officials predicted a 7 million ton winter loss, effectively exhausting food reserves.

Prime Minister Charan Singh said in a parliamentary debate the failure of the monsoon rains resulted in "the worst drought in 60 years."

Millions of people living mostly in the Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Maharashtra and Andhra Pradesh areas were reported leaving their villages for the cities. Newspapers said railroad stations in these areas were crowded with people fleeing the parched rural areas.

UN, China aid refugees

PEKING (UPI) — The United Nations and China have began a drive to rehabilitate by next year a quarter of a million destitute Vietnamese refugees living in China, a U.N. official said Monday.

Jacques Mouchet, the Peking representative for the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, said the UNHCR will contribute $18 million and China will accept 10,000 Indochinese refugees now living in Southeast Asian camps.

The drive is expected to bring actual relief to the refugees "before the end of the year or by next year for sure," Mouchet said.

Begin coalition dealt sharp blow

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Parliament dealt an unprecedented blow to to the future of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's shaky coalition government Monday by defeating an abortion law amendment.

Begin, as part of an agreement that brought the tiny ultraorthodox Agudat Israel Party into his coalition, promised to get a clause permitting abortion for "social reasons" deleted from the law.

Monday's vote was 54-54 with two abstentions against changing a permissive clause in the abortion law. The change failed for lack of a majority. Nine members were absent from the chamber.

Agudat Israel Party has threatened to walk out of the coalition if the law is not amended.

Radiation waste pumped into water

Evans to fight INEL's polluting of aquifer

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans was sharply critical Monday to reports that more than 16-billion gallons of liquid radioactive waste was discharged into Idaho's Snake River aquifer between 1952 and 1970.

The Lewiston Morning Tribune said the government, in an unpublished study, reported the Snake River aquifer beneath the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in eastern Idaho had been contaminated with liquid radioactive wastes during the past 25 years. It said the practice still was going on.

"This aquifer contains one of Idaho's most usable water sources for both the citizens and the farms," Evans said on learning from the media of the report. "Idaho simply will not tolerate any further threat to this invaluable water supply."

He said he is contacting INEL officials Tuesday morning for further clarification of the problem and later will meet with appropriate state officals to determine a course of action.

"The temporary storage of nuclear waste on a safe, controlled surface-level is one thing, but disposing of radioactive liquid contaminates by using injecter wells is completely unacceptable," Evans said.

In addition to the discharge of 16-billion gallons of liquid waste containing 100-million pounds of chemicals and 70,000 curies of radiation into wells and into the ground above the aquifer, the government report said federal contractors dumped large quantities of a cancer-causing agents and salt.

A 1974 U.S. Geological Survey report said between 1952 and 1970, high concentrations of strontium-90 and hexavalent chromium — a non-radioactive chemical identified by public health authorities as a powerful cancer-causing agent — were dumped into the 9,600 square-mile aquifer through disposal wells. Jack Barraclough, one of three geologists who wrote the report, said INEL facilities have since continued to use disposal wells to inject radioactive waste and harmful chemicals into the aquifer. He said strontium-90 and chromium concentrations in some sections of the aquifer still exceed federal drinking water standards.

Barraclough also said tritium, a low energy hydrogen isotope, and salt have contaminated an area of 12-15 square miles of the aquifer.

Wilderness plan threat to mining?

ST. GEORGE, Utah (UPI) — Rep. James Santini, D-Nev., Monday said proposed withdrawal of millions of acres of valuable mineral lands in the West could compromise the nation's defense needs.

In a speech to the 64th annual convention of the Utah Minining Association, Santini said, "The nation's defense industry is now critically dependent on foreign supplies of chrome, cobalt, platinum and manganese," noting that the major suppliers of those minerals are South Africa and the Soviet Union.

The Nevada Democrat said, if Soviet militarism on the African continent is allowed to go unchecked, "the United States would face industrial disaster." He said growing Soviet influence in Africa is just another part "of their strategy to bring the United States to its knees without firing a shot."

Santini, a member of the House Interior Committee and the Foreign Commerce Committee claimed few people realize the importance of mineral development to the U.S. economy. But he said the country is faced with a production crisis, not a resource crisis.

Santini said efforts by the Forest Service and Interior Department to create additional wilderness areas in the United States could end development of the minerals under those lands.

Overload cause of power outage

TWIN FALLS — A power failure left an estimated 486 Twin Falls customers without electricity Monday.

The failure, attributed to a sudden increase in power usage, affected several areas from 7:35 a.m. to 9:59 a.m.

The outage did not encompass the entire area, affecting various segments at different times.

An Idaho Power spokesman said the failure occurred in an overload distribution line servicing the northwest area of Twin Falls. The city is serviced by eight such lines.

The company restored service by switching much of the load to another distribution line.

McClure says:

'Defend nuclear power'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, today called the anti-nuclear faction a snobbish "me generation," composed of persons who "see themselves as better than the rest of society."

Speaking at a meeting of the Atomic Industrial Forum, McClure said, "This battle for survival of nuclear energy cannot be won while conceding the moral issue to the other side."

He said the industry should defend nuclear power on moral grounds.

"It isn't technology, it's politics," he said. "It isn't facts, it's perception."

He said the opposition to nuclear power came mainly from a "new class" of self-righteous persons in government and the media who have achieved economic success themselves and now want to limit economic growth.

They hold influential positions "all out of proportion to their actual strength," he said.

"While they give lip sevice to democracy, they actually hold it in contempt. They see themselves as better than the rest of society," McClure told the meeting.

He said Congress is "an instrument of response," and can be expected to follow public opinion. Many Americans are misinformed about nuclear energy because of the influence of the "new class" of anti-nuclear snobs, he said.

Pharmacy held up

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls drugstore was robbed at gunpoint Monday, Twin Falls Police reported.

The thief, armed with a small handgun, robbed Professional Pharmacy of an undetermined amount of drugs and money, police said. The man was wearing a mask, left on foot and apparently no accomplices were involved, Police Chief Tim Qualls said.

No injuries were reported. The incident occurred at about 5:53 p.m.

The robbery is the third involving a handgun in two weeks and the second involving a drug store.

The case remains under investigation, Qualls said.

Name released

TWIN FALLS — A girl who died Friday in an accidental shooting was identified Monday as Jodi Lynn Newell, 9, of Twin Falls.

The girl's name had been withheld pending notification of family.

She was shot at 8 p.m. when a weapon being handled by a 12-year old boy discharged, striking her in the chest. The incident occurred when a motorhome the family was traveling in had stopped at a Rogerson store and service station.

Coronor Cloyce Edwards said the girl died instantly.

Three Creek's Swan named to land board

BOISE — Mike P. Mitchell and Bill Swan have been appointed by Secretary of Interior Cecil D. Andrus to a two-year term on the National Public Lands Council.

Mitchell, a Lewiston businessman and member of the Idaho Legislature, and Swan, a Three Creek rancher and current president of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association, have been notified of their appointments by Bureau of Land Management Director Frank Gregg.

According to Gregg, the 17-member council will advise the BLM and the Department of the Interior about plans and programs for nearly 400 million acres of public lands and public resources.

Andrus said the new council members were selected from 286 names submitted following a nationwide call for nominations.

Appointed to serve with Mitchell and Swan on the council were: Bob Armstrong of Austin, Tex., commissioner of the Texas General Land Office; Dorothy Bradley of the National Center for Appropriate Technology — and former state legislator, Butte, Mont.; Pamela Crowell of the University of Nevada, Reno.; Thalin Dondero, a commissioner for Clark County from Las Vegas; Jerry Geist, president of the Public Service Co. of New Mexico in Albuquerque; Peter Guerrero, a Phoenix attorney; and Charlotte Harter, an economist with Oregon State University, Corvallis.

Kimberly school board opposes proposed electric rate increase

KIMBERLY — Kimberly school board chairman Jay Smith will submit a resolution opposing an electricity rate increase for schools at the Idaho School Board Association convention at Coeur d'Alene later this week.

The brief resolution, approved by the Kimberly school board Saturday, opposes a rate hike for all-electric schools proposed by the state Public Utilities Commission and originally scheduled to take effect last January.

Smith said the PUC no longer intends to implement the change, but he wants the ISBA to go on record anyway opposing such a change in the future. The proposal would have moved all-electric schools into a different commercial rate schedule, putting an "unnecessary burden on school funding," Smith said. The change would have doubled the cost of heating all-electric Kimberly High School, he added.

Since Monday was a holiday, PUC officials could not be reached for comment.

The convention, which four of Kimberly's five school board members and superintendent Vernon Exner will attend, is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Schools are already charged a commercial rate for their electricity, Smith explained. Unlike residential rates, commercial rates include a "demand charge" for a building's peak use period. Currently, Smith said, all-electric schools are charged a $1.54 demand charge every month for every kilowatt used during the single 15-minute period in which the school used the most electricity. Added to the monthly bill is an additional charge of 1.6 cents per kilowatt hour.

Smith said the PUC proposal would have changed Kimberly High School's classification to commercial rate schedule No. 12. Under that schedule, the school would be charged monthly demand fees of $3.77 per kilowatt for the 15-minute peak use period during the first 10 kilowatt hours plus $2.29 per kilowatt hour after the first 10. On top of that, Smith said, the school would have been charged additional "energy charges" amounting to 1.829 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 15,000 kilowatt hours used every month plus 1.303 cents for each kilowatt hour above 15,000.

Cloud seeding?

Sun Valley resorts consider move as snow insurance

By SUSAN McBRYANT
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley Co., Elkhorn at Sun Valley and the Chamber Resort Association are considering cloud seeding to insure adequate snowfall this winter.

Cloud seeding is a means of modifying weather conditions. By "seeding" clouds with silver iodide crystals, increased precipitation can be created.

Cloud seeding has been done here in past years, most recently by Colorado International Corp. in 1973.

Ralph Papania, CIC representative, met with officials of the interested organizations last week to provide statistical information relative to the chances for success of such an operation and to work up a proposed cost estimate.

Papania has indicated he would consider a 25 percent or greater increase in snowfall over a season a "success."

No final decision about whether to try cloud seeding have been made, but all avenues are being considered, according to Chuck Webb, spokesman for Sun Valley Co.

Webb indicated that Sun Valley, Elkhorn and the Resort Association are all interested in weather modification, should it prove a feasible means of upgrading snow conditions in the winter resort.

Jed Grey, chamber resort director, has contacted the state for financial aid, indicating that the additional precipitation would also be advantageous for area farmers.

If cloud seeding is to be effective, a storm situation must exist. Although the temperature at Sun Valley is in the teens now and will dip lower throughout the winter, storms are comparatively infrequent in the area.

George Yonskey, forecaster of the US Weather Bureau, explained why Sun Valley has less snow than the immediate surrounding areas.

Basically, most storm systems in the winter tend to move west to east.

The storms pass over the coastal mountains of Washington and Oregon, dropping the first of the accumulated snow. As the storm center moves east over the Cascades and then the Blue Mountains, more precipitation is wrung out of the clouds.

More snow usually falls in the Boise area, and what snow potential remains, which is usually little, heads for the Wood River Valley.

Storms reaching the Wood River Valley often are deflected either north or south following the prevailing wind currents in the valley and often miss the Ketchum-Sun Valley area altogether.

As a result, cloud seeding in this area can be an uncertain business, as prevailing air currents can carry the storm clouds beyond the desired drop site before any precipitation falls.

A spokesman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Hailey said there are no restrictions on cloud seeding as long as no attempts are made to cause unseasonal changes in weather patterns, like snow storms in the summertime.

He said the only requirement is that the department be notified when cloud seeding is to be done.

Wool growers bristling over changes in predator control

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the board of the National Wool Growers Association said Monday the group is "not going to sit still" for Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus' decision on predator control.

Speaking to the 87th annual meeting of the Idaho Wool Growers Association in Boise, Roscoe Rich charged that the Interior Department had changed its policy on predator control and was now "protecting the coyote rather than protecting livestock."

The document, which states the U.S. Interior Department's position on predator control, was released Friday by Andrus.

"The bureaucrats from the Potomac River have dictated the land policy and the water policy of the West and now they want to run the sheep industry," Rich said.

Rich said the document was "nothing like" the one sent to the agency for approval after a series of hearings and environmental studies were held on the issue.

Although Rich said the group did not have a copy of the document, he said it had been read over the telephone to him.

He said one of the goals of the program as set down by the department was to "decrease the exposure of animals to predators" through proper husbandry methods.

"They've changed it (past policy) to livestock control to protect predators," Rich said.

The program also sets down a goal of limited control in areas with "unacceptable" losses which have been documented in the last 12 months, Rich said. He said the program did not define what unacceptable losses were and questioned "who's going to make the decision."

Another goal of the program is to phase out lethal types of control methods and emphasize non-lethal, non-capture methods for the offending animal, Rich said.

"How in the hell is any one going to find out if that's the offending animal check to see if there's wool between his teeth?" Rich said.

The document also limits aerial shooting to only known offending predators, calls for more humane methods of trapping and bans research and use of the lethal chemical 1080.

Rich said the use of 1080 had become an "emotional issue, a political issue" and said sheep ranchers will "never get the use of 1080 back."

The board chairman also denounced the selection of Cynthia Wilson to oversee implementation of the program by the department, saying "that's like putting the fox in charge of the chickens."

He said Ms. Wilson had been a member of several environmental groups before coming to the department.

Although Rich said the group planned to fight the decision, National Wool Growers Association President Mary Cronberg said the group "did not have any hope to change the decision."

Rich said the "name of the game is politics" and said "we're going to have to stand up to it (the federal government) or we're not going to be in business."

He also expressed his support of the "Sagebrush Rebellion" and said he felt "we're going to get something done" although he doubted if the ultimate — state ownership of federal lands — will be accomplished.

Magistrate candidates sought

BOISE (UPI) — The 4th Judicial District is seeking applicants for a non-attorney magistrate.

District Administrative Judge Robert Rowett said the magistrate's duties will be mainly at the traffic court in Boise but the judge must be available for assignment throughout the district, which includes Ada, Valley, Boise and Elmore counties.

Candidates must be qualified electors and residents of Ada County while holding office. The job will pay between $10,000 and $20,000, depending on education and experience.

Hunter mistaken for an elk

BOISE (UPI) — Richard A. Detroit, 43, Klamath Falls, Ore., was reported in fair condition today at St. Alphonse Hospital after being wounded in his left knee by a hunter who told Oregon State Police he thought he was shooting at an elk.

Detroit was picking up firewood for his hunting camp when he was wounded last Friday in the Trout Meadow area between Granite and Ukiah in Oregon's Grant County. He was first treated at a St. Elizabeth Community Hospital in Baker, Ore., and then taken to Boise.

Charged with negligent wounding of another was James F. Schuiden, 37, Milton-Freewater, Oreg.

Nampa man traffic victim

NAMPA (UPI) — Nampa police have identified the victim of a weekend traffic accident as Alfred Lloyd Cearley, 67, Nampa.

He was killed Saturday in a three-car accident in Nampa.

Cearley was a passenger in a car driven by Margaret Louise Russell, Nampa, which collided with one driven by Monfoya Hernandez, also of Nampa. The force of the collision resulted in the two cars colliding with one driven by Reed Walker of Nampa.

Sheep ranchers can appeal cuts in grazing allotments

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen told Idaho sheep ranchers a provision has been adopted as part of the Bureau of Land Management's 1980 operating budget giving ranchers the right to appeal cuts in grazing allotments.

Addressing the Idaho Wool Growers Association in its 87th annual convention, Hansen said he and Idaho Rep. Steve Symms and Sen. James McClure authored the legislation to give ranchers the right to appeal within 30 days proposed cuts in grazing allotments over 10 percent.

"Idaho ranchers who face cuts of as much as 75 percent in their traditional grazing allotments will now be able to stay in business while Congress reviews the BLM's proposed massive grazing cuts for possible and positive alternatives for public range management improvement," Hansen said.

Idaho Power worries over winter demand

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company officials are concerned about the coming winter because of below-normal precipitation this year and increased customer demand during the winter months.

Don Barclay, vice president in charge of planning and resources, said there is concern Idaho Power won't be able to meet the demand.

Company officials said the outcome depends on the amount of rain and snow from now until spring, but even more critical is the unpredictable demand of Idaho Power customers.

They said they have no way to determine how many customers have converted to electric heat or will use small electric room heaters.

The Water and Power Resources Service reports reservoir levels throughout the Pacific Northwest are averaging 25 to 30 percent below normal.

At The Dalles, Ore., where the Bonneville Power Administration measures the natural flow of the Columbia River, the volume during the first nine days of October was below the all-time October low set 50 years ago.

Gene Tollefson, a BPA spokesman in Portland, Ore., said by the end of September, the BPA had lost 5 billion kilowatt hours of capacity, enough power to serve 337,000 homes for a year.

Tollefson said the situation is worse than BPA would like it to be, but "it is better than it could be."

Payments may end track careers

LONDON (UPI) — Two world record holders, Sebastian Coe and Edwin Moses, are among more than a dozen athletes threatened by an inquiry into alleged under-the-table track and field payments that may end their amateur careers before the Moscow Olympics.

The inquiry has been demanded by the International Amateur Athletics Federation and it involves payments to athletes in an international meeting at Gateshead, England in July, 1978.

Ken Buckingham, a Gateshead town councillor, has said the council accounts clearly show that athletes were paid about $20,000 in appearance money. On Sunday, British newspapers printed the names of athletes and the amounts of money which allegedly were paid.

The newspapers said Moses was supposedly paid $1,700 and Coe, $430. Among other world class athletes who allegedly received money were New Zealander Rod Dixon, Olympic gold medalist sprinter Don Quarrie of Jamaica, Allan Wells of Scotland, British shot putter Geoff Capes, Briton Mike McLeod, winner of the "golden 10,000 meters" this fall in Brussels, and his British teammates David Moorcroft, Tessa Sanderson and Sonia Lannaman among others.

The British Amateur Athletic Board has denied reports it was planning to delay the result of its inquiry until after the Moscow Olympics, but the IAAF has now stepped in and asked for a report by Dec. 1.

"The IAAF has made it known that they want these matters cleared up quickly and not dragged on into next year," said IAAF secretary General John Holt.

If Buckingham's charges are proven and the money was paid as appearance money and not as expenses, the implications are considerable. On the face of it, the IAAF and the International Olympic Committee will have no choice but to ban any athletes found guilty of accepting appearance money.

Despite the comparatively relaxed new rules governing amateurism, the IAAF rule 51 and the IOC's rule 26 specifically ban such payments.

Ironically, the amounts involved are quite small compared to other behind-the-scenes payments track stars were receiving this summer, according to British track sources. Holt said he was aware of the paradox.

The IAAF has not turned a blind eye to what is known to be going on throughout Europe, but up until now there has been no real evidence forthcoming," Holt said.

The standard practice among many track and field promoters in Europe is to pay athletes "expenses" in the form of airline tickets from their home countries or somewhere else where they have been competing. An athlete on a European tour will collect dozens of these tickets which he will then cash in at the end of the season.

But whether athletes like Coe and Moses will become scapegoats for a system which all top athletes are using remains unclear.

In the most famous case of this kind, the IOC banned Austrian skier Karl Schranz on the eve of the 1972 Sapporo Winter Games in Japan because he was judged to have received sponsorship money.

But that was the action of autocratic IOC president Avery Brundage and the current IOC president, Lord Killanin, is known to have a more cautious approach.

The problem of payments to amateur track and field competitors pales when compared to the $100,000-plus that top alpine skiers now are reported to be making annually, and Killanin is well aware of that as well.

The problem reverts to proof of such payments.

"We don't want the IOC to have a police force going round checking up on reported violations. It is up to the individual federations to control their own sport," Killanin has said.

Eagles fly by Dallas

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The familiar weapons in the Philadelphia arsenal made their usual contributions in chilled Texas Stadium Monday night, but it was left up to a rookie kicker to make the play that ignited the Eagles to one of their biggest victories in recent memory.

"We just didn't think he could kick it that far," bemoaned Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It was a spectacular kick. When he made it, it seemed to take something out of us."

Tony Franklin, the only kicker in NCAA history to make two field goals of more than 60 yards in a single game, booted the second longest field goal in the annals of the NFL Monday night — a 59 yarder — to climax a critical 36 seconds worth of action at the close of the first half and spur Philadelphia to a 31-21 victory over the Cowboys.

Franklin's field goal came with 27 seconds left in the half and followed close on the heels of a 29-yard touchdown pass from backup quarterback John Walton to Charles Smith that put Philadelphia in front for good.

"This is the most meaningful thing that has ever happened to me," said Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil after he was given the game ball by his players.

"This didn't just happen tonight. It started during the off season, went through training camp, and came thanks to a lot of tough days and nights and after a lot of griping and moaning."

Philadelphia's victory broke a nine-game Dallas winning streak over the Eagles and left the Cowboys, 8-3, with a mere one-game lead in the NFC East over the Eagles and the Washington Redskins.

Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski, who suffered a sprained wrist late in the first half, hit 6-foot-8 flanker Harold Carmichael with a 32-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and returned to throw a 13-yard scoring pass to Carmichael in the third period.

Although the Eagles dominated play almost all night, a Dallas rally left the game in doubt until the Eagles' Wilbert Montgomery, on a third-and-2 situation, ran 37 yards for a touchdown with 1:01 remaining in the game.

But it was the heroics of Walton and Franklin in the final seconds of the first half that ignited the Eagles, who lost their previous four games and were in danger of falling out of the division race.

The game was tied 7-7 when, with 1:35 to play in the half, Jaworski fell under defensive end Harvey Martin. Jaworski, in obvious pain, was helped off the field and went to the locker room for X-rays on his wrist. In came Walton, a seldom-used quarterback from Elizabeth City State in New Jersey, who promptly took advantage of a fumbled punt and threw a 29-yard touchdown pass to Charles Smith that gave the Eagles the lead.

On the first play following the kickoff, Dallas quarterback Danny White, briefly filling in a for a slightly injured Roger Staubach, was intercepted by Philadelphia's Randy Logan.

Philadelphia went nowhere in three plays but Franklin — holder of 18 NCAA kicking records, came in to try a 59-yard field goal.

Bruins shooting for improvement

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Improved height and shooting are the reasons Twin Falls basketball Coach Kathy Anderson believes her Bruins can improve on last year's record.

"It might be difficult early for us," the coach said, "because we have only three experienced players back. But some of the girls have worked hard on their game during the off-season and have improved quite a bit."

Also helping is the return of center Kelly Krahn to the game. The 5-11½ junior sat out last season.

"I guess she is an outstanding music student and she couldn't get her music and basketball schedules to dovetail," Coach Anderson said. "This year she was able to make the necessary arrangements."

Krahn's availability provides help for the one major weakness Coach Anderson sees in the club — experience at the forward spots.

"If Kelly can hold down the center position, that will let us move (5-9½ junior) Susie Shelby to forward," she said.

The Bruins finished last season at 7-11, a mark that came after a very poor start.

"We have better height than last year and even though we don't have a lot of experience, I think we can be more respectable early this year," she said.

The coach is certain "this will be a better shooting team. I think we will be able to score quite well in the 12- to 15-foot ranges and have potential out to the top of the key."

Heading the returnees is senior Karen Harr, a 5-5 swing player who was Twin Falls' leading scorer last year. Shelby, a sophomore starter, was one of the better rebounders on the team. The other veteran returning is Eileen Neville, a 5-4 junior guard.

"Susie and Eileen have been working on their games and have shown considerable improvement," the coach said. "We feel that Karen will have a better year than last season because she has the experience and the other girls can take some of the scoring pressure off her."

Harr is joined by first-year-player Amy Henscheid as the only seniors on the team. The rest are juniors.

"We had an excellent turnout . . . about 40 players," Anderson said. "We will carry 11 on the varsity and there will be 15 on the jayvee team."

The coach also noted her team will play a lot of Friday and Saturday games, which she sees as a blessing.

"It gives us a lot more practice time. Playing two or three games in the middle of the week never gives you time to concentrate on problem areas."

Up from last year's jayvee squad are Carrie Hanson, 5-3; Kris Nungester, 5-1; Cass Herbst, 5-6, and Henscheid, 5-5.

Other junior newcomers, in addition to Krahn, are Mona Fisher, 5-2; Teresa Woods, 5-6, and Susan Engelhart, 5-8.

"I think our ball handling will be okay," the coach continued. "Mona handles the ball well. Nungester has shown a lot of ball handling improvement and Eileen has been working, too," she said.

The Twin Falls schedule:

Two games kick off girls' season tonight

Girls basketball explodes across the Magic Valley this week.

By Friday night, 15 of the 22 participating schools will have tasted their first action.

All of the first week play centers around non-conference competition but with the season ending the last week of January, the league title chases will begin shortly thereafter.

The first games are slated tonight with members of the Canyon and Magic Valley Conferences colliding.

Shoshone, rated by coaches as one of the Canyon Conference contenders, will be at Hagerman, where Coach Tim Ross thinks his crew can become a factor after a little game experience.

Declo, which feels it can play with about anyone in the Canyon league, will entertain the Murtaugh Red Devils, who boast only a seven-girl squad.

The big night will be Thursday when five games are scheduled including Declo at Raft River, Gooding at Richfield, Filer at Buhl, Wood River at Minico and Kimberly at Murtaugh.

Good rivalries end the schedule Friday night.

Hagerman is at Wendell, Shoshone travels to Richfield and Filer goes to Twin Falls.

U.S. plans amateur change

By JENNY KELLNER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK — At no time was the disorganized state of amateur athletics in the United States more obvious than during the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Because of the lack of communication between officials, coaches and athletes on the national and international level, the U.S., which wound up a distant second behind the Soviet Union in medals, was further embarrassed when some of its athletes were deprived of medals through avoidable mixups.

The most infamous case was that of swimmer Rick DeMont, who was stripped of his gold medal after winning the 400 meter freestyle because he had taken an antihistamine which showed up in his urine specimen. Also shut out were two sprinters who missed the qualifying heats for the 100 meters because no one told them what time to report.

A presidential study, triggered by the confusion in Munich, outlined the problems with amateur sports in the U.S. and listed as the chief culprit the fact there were simply too many factions governing too many sports.

Accordingly, the Amateur Sports Act was passed in 1978 and gave the 32 Olympic sports two years to establish an autonomous National Governing Body for each sport, with all 32 NGBs holding 67 percent of the vote within the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Although the AAU, which had control over eight Olympic sports, and the NCAA, whose affiliates had control over others such as gymnastics, are still wrangling over track and field, the NGBs will come together at U.S. Olympic headquarters in Colorado Springs Nov. 17-18 to vote on a measure to finalize the restructuring and centralization of amateur sports in the United States.

Bob Helmick, president of the AAU, has proposed to the USOC that the AAU's 60 offices will service all 32 Olympic sports instead of just eight.

"Once we have divested ourselves of our national governing body role, we find there is still a need for running sports on a local basis," said Helmick. "For example, if someone wanted to play water polo in Iowa, we would be there as a central resource center, a touchstone of public information.

"We already have the organization in place — all we need to do is make it available to all 32 sports instead of just swimming and diving, track and field, bobsledding, luge, boxing, weightlifting, wrestling and judo."

96 points in football? Just ask China Spring

CHINA SPRING, Texas (UPI) — If anyone has ever wondered how to score 96 points in a high school football game, the China Spring Cougars can tell you.

You get 70 in the first half and 26 in the second.

Last weekend, the defending state champion Cougars defeated Lorena 96-0 in a district battle — bettering the score from last year's record rout of 75-0.

The Cougars had to punt only once during the game, and that came in the second half. They did have three scoring opportunities halted on fumbles, including one in the first quarter at the Lorena 5-yard line.

The Leopards were determined to get a passing game going against China Spring and threw the ball on the first three downs of almost every possession. On fourth down they punted.

The first quarter, 12 minutes on the clock, took one hour to play.

Stuart, O'Leary to resume cross-town rivalry tonight in opening matchup of 1979 basketball season

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — The Robert Stuart Bears and Vera C. O'Leary Cubs battle tonight in the opening game of the 1979 junior high basketball season.

Action at O'Leary in this longtime, cross-town rivalry will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the eighth grade. The ninth-grade game will follow at 7 p.m.

Prior to their season, both teams participated in a pre-season West Minico Invitational Tournament where Stuart took home the championship. O'Leary was ousted from the tournament in the first round by East Minico.

Both teams have completely different styles.

O'Leary will take the court with a small, but physical team lacking depth on the bench and, according to coach Clarence Phillips, "not a lot of speed."

Stuart, on the other hand, has tremendous height with five players reaching the six-foot plateau. Stuart Coach Chuck Brown also boasts of excellent shooting ability and the desire to win.

"Last year (in eighth grade) this very same team went through its season undefeated and everybody is out to get them, and the kids know it, too," said Brown. "Everybody is after us, and I think it will make us work harder."

Both coaches agree that Robert Stuart is the team to beat this year but Brown still admits that O'Leary has one definite threat.

"Mike Rice is probably their best all around player. An excellent shooter with fine speed, he will make it tough for us," said Brown.

Despite Rice's threat, Brown has one more player to worry about. That being 6-4 Brad Kittridge.

Kittridge will rank as the tallest Cub on the court and should make it an interesting battle when matched up against Stuart's 6-5 Lanning Morrison.

Morrison is just one of Brown's giants. He will also present 6-3 Bobby Jones, 6-1 Mark Mumm, 6-1 Greg Snow and 6-0 Kenny Tuma.

Other Stuart team members include Oscar Salinas, Brock Miller, Cory Ochsner, Tim Van Ostran, Scott Scherer, David Slotten and Shawn Humberger.

"We have excellent team height for a junior high team. Our height will really help us out throughout the season," said Brown.

One problem facing his team is the transition from the zone defense to the man-to-man.

"Last year they were taught and played the zone defense. This year we are going to run a man-to-man, and it is tough on them to change," he said.

O'Leary Coach Phillips remains positive his cagers can win tonight despite the threat of Stuart's height, speed and shooting ability.

"If they really want it enough, they can do it," he said. "This team is a good average team, and they are really looking forward to beating Stuart and keeping the victory bell. If they work hard and perform to their capacity, I think we can pull it off."

O'Leary team members other than Rice and Kittridge are Keith Page, Steve Root, Rob Champlin, Cort Roberts, Scott Guthrie, Mark Kleinkopf, Mike Ulrich, Jeff Livingston, Vern Bastow, Paul Jensen, Brent Standing, Doug Clark and Don Reynolds.

Prior to the start of the ninth grade battle, O'Leary Coach Jerry Sivulich and Stuart Coach Mel Reynolds will present their version of junior high eighth grade basketball.

Both teams are very small and contain surprising speed and according to Sivulich, "a very close battle is in store."

"Stuart will run a zone so if we can jump on the boards and quickly get set up on offense we will be in good shape," said Sivulich.

The following are the schedules for both teams:

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Defender Mike Hunter of Santa Clara was the No. 1 selection Monday of the Major Indoor Soccer League college draft in which seven players were chosen from top-ranked Indiana.

Fifty players — five for each of the MISL's 10 teams — were selected in the five-round draft. Ten more were chosen in a territorial round, in which each team was given the right to draft a player within a 75-mile radius of its site.

Hunter, who anchors a Santa Clara defense that has allowed 15 goals in its first 18 games this season, was selected by the expansion Detroit Lightning. Coach Terry Fisher called Hunter "the finest young defender in the country."

Defender Mike Freitag of Indiana, a four-year college starter, was the second player selected, the top pick of the new Wichita Wings.

The other top choices of the first-year teams were goalkeeper Paul Turin of South Carolina by the St. Louis Steamers, forward John Tyma of Cleveland State by the Hartford Hellions and forward Jim Stamatis of Penn State by the Buffalo Stallions.

The Cleveland Force chose goalkeeper John Putna of Indiana in the first round and picked Hoosier players — forward Jim Vamer, defenders Jeff Sendobry and Joe Andert and midfielder Mark Simanton — in the next four rounds. Teammate Rudy Glenn, a midfielder, was a second-round pick of Wichita.

Other first-round picks were forward David Hundelt of Southern Illinois-Edwardsville by the Houston Summit Soccer, forward Miguel Avila of Santa Clara by the defending champion New York Arrows, midfielder Michael Mancke of Philadelphia Textile by the Philadelphia Fever and midfielder Luis Calderon of American University by the Pittsburgh Spirit.

Feud sparks Gamecock punch

By United Press International

South Carolina Coach Jim Carlen says he was slugged after Saturday night's game with Florida State because of a feud with the family of a former Gamecocks' quarterback.

"The whole thing was over Skip Ramsey," Carlen told the Tallahassee Democrat. "... I told reporters afterward, please don't pin this on Florida State or Coach (Bobby) Bowden. It would be unfair for Tallahassee or Florida State to take the blame."

William Glenn Ramsey of Atlanta, Skip's father, and Craig Ramsey, Skip's brother, were charged with "public affray" after witnesses told police the pair slugged Carlen in separate incidents minutes after the game ended.

The two were released early Sunday on $52.50 bond each. If convicted of the misdemeanor charge, they will face a fine of up to $1,000 and up to a year in prison.

Skip Ramsey left South Carolina before the beginning of the season after being beaten out by Garry Harper for the starting quarterback assignment and is now enrolled at Georgia State College.

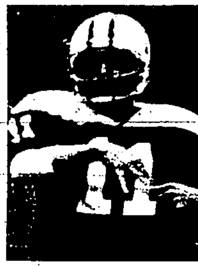
"I hurt for Skip Ramsey, I really do," Carlen said. "The toughest thing is for a young man not to succeed. He went to Alabama and he didn't make it and he came here and he didn't make it. But it's not the end of the world and I thought he could adjust to it."

"He ruined my career," Skip Ramsey said of Carlen when contacted at his parents' home in Atlanta. "As far as I'm concerned, he doesn't exist. I don't want to mention his name."

Skip Ramsey transferred to South Carolina from Alabama after the 1976 season. He was redshirted in 1977, then played sporadically last season. Carlen finally settled on Harper late in the year and Ramsey left the team.

EIGHT CROSS COUNTRY SKIING enthusiasts from Southern California "roller-skied" into Sidney Monday en route to the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Group spokesman Bill Carr, 31, San Gabriel, Calif., said the four women and four men were averaging about 40 miles daily on three-foot-long three-wheeled roller skis used by professional cross county ski racers during summer training.



New mark
Portland State's Neil Lomax amassed a total of 316 yards against Idaho State Saturday to become the all-time NCAA record holder for total offense with 8,425 yards in his career.

MATT CAVANAUGH, the New England Patriots' third string quarterback and holder, Monday underwent minor surgery to remove bone chips from his right knee.

Cavanaugh first discovered his knee "locked" during the team's practice last Wednesday. He was treated and played Sunday against Denver as a holder.

The bone chips resulted from a childhood condition and were not in the knee on which surgery was performed following his senior year at Pittsburgh.

Cavanaugh is expected to spend several days in the hospital and will be sidelined a minimum of two weeks, the team said.

ED RESSLER began with games of 279, 268 and 258 Monday in the $130,000 PBA Memorial World Open to take the lead midway through the first round by 42 pins over Matt Surina.

Ressler, a four-time PBA winner from Bethlehem, Pa., totaled 805 for his first three games and followed with scores of 195, 247, 231, 241 and 256.

The 24-year-old right-hander knocked down 1,975 pins for a 247 eight-game average in the tournament.

SAN JOSE STATE QUARTERBACK Ed Luther was named the Pacific Coast Athletic Association's Offensive Player of the Week for the fourth time this season and Cal State Long Beach linebacker Mark Fata grabbed defensive honors in balloting announced Monday.

Luther, a 6-3, 215-pound senior from La Mirada, completed 34 of 58 passes for 421 yards and two touchdowns Saturday in San Jose State's 32-31 victory over the University of the Pacific. The 34 completions set a school and conference record for a single game. It was the second game this season in which Luther had passed for more than 400 yards.

JUNIOR LINEBACKER Tom Faerber is lost for the season because of head injuries and has been advised to give up football altogether, Kansas State coach Jim Dickey said Monday.

Faerber, the seventh Wildcat given up for the season because of injuries, suffered a concussion two weeks ago against Kansas and missed last Saturday's 21-12 loss to Nebraska.

A MEMBER of the University of Iowa freshman football team has been charged with first-degree murder in the stabbing death of an Iowa City man.

Police said Daniel A. Treiber, 19, Madison, Wis., stabbed Randy Seydel, 20, in Iowa City early Saturday. Treiber was being held in Johnson County Jail in lieu of $35,000 bond following his arraignment.

Florida State eyes first major bowl

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr.
©1979 N.Y. Times News Service

TALLAHASSEE, FLA. — Starting Monday morning, Nov. 5, when a local radio station first played a new recording, "The Ballad of Bobby Bowden," the week became a succession of happy events for the head football coach at Florida State University and his team.

In chronological order, they were:

• Monday afternoon, Bowden signed a five-year, $640,000 contract with Florida State, making him one of the half-dozen highest-paid college coaches in the nation. This contract has a self-perpetuating clause by which the pact will automatically be extended to five more years every January unless either the university or Bowden wishes to limit it to what is left at the time.

• Tuesday, Florida State continued to be ranked among the top seven football teams in the nation.

• Thursday, Bowden, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and father of six, celebrated his 50th birthday in excellent health and very high spirits.

• Saturday night, the Seminoles remained undefeated and untied by beating a strong South Carolina team, 27-7.

But everyone at Florida State is waiting for one other thing to make the string of events complete: The university's first invitation from one of the three available major postseason bowl games. This may arrive Saturday from either the Sugar Bowl or the Orange Bowl.

Bowden said Louisiana State University talked to him as a replacement for Charlie McClendon, who is being forced out at the end of this season. Knowing about the LSU offer and some others, Florida State put together a contract that few rival universities will try to better. A clause states that if Bowden leaves before the agreement expires, he or his next employer must pay Florida State the remaining value of Bowden's salary at the rate of $128,000 a year.

Although some major bowl officials have expressed doubts about Florida State as a "worthy bowl team," the Seminole players have virtually forced their way into a major game.

But the problem is not whether Florida State is a solid team, but whether Florida State fans will go to the bowl city and go on a spending spree for a few days prior to the game.

Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, said two weeks ago: "It is not a case of selling tickets. Bowl games now sell out without the team fans. It is a matter of the business interests in our cities who want folks to come in and spend money. Florida State fans haven't been tested or proven there. We want them in town for more than just the day before the game."

James Smith, the Florida attorney general and an enthusiastic Florida State alumnus, said: "One thing the bowls don't evaluate is that when we get our first major bowl we'll have people selling the family jewels to go. Leon County here is one of the highest, if not the highest, per-family-income counties in the State of Florida. And they all love the Seminoles."

Prior to World War II, this institution was the Florida State College for Women. It became coeducational in 1946, as did many other women's colleges, in order to accommodate the returning veterans who attended under the GI Bill of Rights. The name was then changed to Florida State University, and the first football team was put on the field in 1947, losing all five games to other small college teams.

This was turned around quickly. The Seminoles won seven of eight games in 1948, nine of 10 in 1949 and were unbeaten in 1950. But it was not until 1951 that Florida State began to move up in status by playing its first major college opponent — the University of Miami. The next year North Carolina State, Georgia Tech, and Mississippi Southern were major opponents.

After political pressure was exerted in the state legislature, the University of Florida was forced to play the Seminoles in 1958.

Upchurch leads punt returners

By United Press International

Fifth-year veteran Rick Upchurch Sunday became the NFL's all-time punt return leader, breaking a record set by Emlen Tunnell in 14 seasons.

Upchurch, in Denver's 45-10 rout of the New England Patriots, returned three punts for 30 yards, to surpass Tunnell's record of 2,209 yards.

The Bronco wide receiver-punt return specialist now has 2,219 return yards on punts.

Tunnell had achieved the top-ranking punt return status over a 14 year career with stints with the New York Giants from 1948-58 and Green Bay from 1959-61.

"When you come into pro football you don't know how you'll last," Upchurch said. "For me and the team to get the record, it's a blessing I'll never forget."

Too many mistakes for super Steelers

Maybe Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll watched the wrong films Monday. How else to explain two of the comments he made about the Steelers' 30-3 romp over the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday?

Noll said, you see, that he agreed with quarterback Terry Bradshaw's post-game assessment that the Pittsburgh offense made a lot of mistakes in pushing its record to 9-2.

The coach also said the reason he did not replace Bradshaw, who was playing with a sore back, until late in the game was because he was afraid the 4-7 Chiefs would mount a comeback.

Noll's remarks, made at his weekly news conference, were greeted with skepticism, particularly the one about the offense not playing well, since it piled up 355 yards total offense in scoring 30 points.

Joe Ferguson called the plays

Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox did some thinking in practice last week and decided to let Joe Ferguson do some thinking of his own.

"We've been looking for someone to give us leadership on offense, so we let Joe call the game," said Knox Sunday after allowing Ferguson to call his own plays for the first time this season. "Yeah, I think I'm gonna let him call the plays next week, too."

Skins prepare for Cowboys

The thrill of Sunday's 30-28 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals wore off quickly for the Washington Redskins. After all, this is "Dallas Week."

Mark Moseley's last-minute 38-yard field goal had hardly settled into the net when the Redskins' thoughts turned to the Cowboys, this week's visitors at RFK Stadium.

"It doesn't take long to get us thinking about Dallas," Redskins' Coach Jack Pardee admitted Monday. "We did manage to enjoy this win for a while Sunday night, though.

"I felt it would be a close game and a hard one to win. It turned out that way, but it took some funny turns to get there."

Bengal back takes issue over call

Like E.F. Hutton, when Marvin Cobb talks, people listen.

And because Cobb talked — and reporters listened and wrote — the defensive back of the Cincinnati Bengals has put his personal future with the beleaguered club in jeopardy.

Cobb, publicly criticized his coaches for calling a defensive formation he figures contributed to Cincinnati's 26-24 loss to San Diego Sunday.

Players often gripe near the end of a losing season (the Bengals are 2-9), but Cobb's criticisms must be viewed differently because of the way he made them — in precise, analytical fashion — and because he is one of the smartest players in football.

Cobb was a National Merit Scholar at the University of Southern California. His hobbies include—flying—single-engine airplanes, playing the piano and electronics.

This is also his fifth season playing in the Bengals' defensive backfield, the unit that surrendered a key 31-yard pass in the closing seconds that led to the bitter loss.

Puerto Rican governor balks at extradition idea

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Puerto Rican Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo will probably ignore a request from the local Bar Association to ask for the extradition of Indiana University basketball coach Bobby Knight to serve a six-month jail sentence for assault, political observers said Monday.

Monday was a public holiday in Puerto Rico, Veterans Day, and no government officials were available to comment on a Bar Association resolution adopted last Saturday at a lawyer's convention, calling for Knight's extradition.

Political observers, however, pointed out that Gov. Romero has been involved in a running feud with the Bar Association over what he sees as the organization's growing politicization.

The governor is pro-statehood and the present leadership of the bar association is heavily tilted towards the independence and commonwealth sides. The observers also pointed out that the governor has already rejected two demands from political opposition parties to press for Knight's extradition and that he is not likely to reverse his position because of the bar association's resolution.

The governor has said all along that Puerto Rico doesn't ordinarily seek extradition in case of misdemeanors and that he doesn't want to make an exception of Knight.

Knight was sentenced in absentia to six months in jail and a $500 fine — or another three months in case he defaults on the fine — for hitting Puerto Rican policeman Jose Silva last July 3 during a dispute over a practice gymnasium.

Former Celtic Stacom waits for phone to ring

Combined wire services

The Boston Celtics are off to one of their best starts in history, but one of their staunchest fans is hoping something goes awry.

"I can only hope," says Kevin Stacom. "For now, I'm just waiting. Waiting and hoping."

The 6-foot-5 guard and defensive specialist was the last man cut by Boston, after spending four and one-half seasons with the Celtics. He has opened a bar in Newport, R.I., but he's still waiting for the phone to ring.

"They told me as soon as they had a hole they'd be calling me," Stacom said recently. "I'm still waiting."

The Celtics, however, have few holes to fill. They are 10-3, one game out of first place in the Atlantic Division. Coach Bill Fitch has the team working together, and last week bypassed a chance to pick up forward Jim Brewer off the waiver wire. At this stage, Fitch doesn't want to disturb the chemistry of the team.

This year's team is a far cry from the last year's squad, which compiled the sorriest record in club history. But Stacom, who split last year between Boston and Indiana, doesn't see all that many differences.

"Basically they've got all the talent they had last year," Stacom said. "Except for (rookie) Larry Bird. He's the difference."

Boston also has added free agents M.L. Carr and Gerald Henderson, the latter being the one who displaced Stacom on the Celtics' roster. Dave Cowens and Nate Archibald are off to great starts and Fitch has installed a new system.

The frizzy-haired, soft-spoken Stacom didn't get any offers when waived by Boston, and says he'll wait two more months for a call from the Celtics. After that, he's not certain of his future plans.

"I'm staying in shape, working hard to be ready," he said. "I work out every other day, take a lot of shots, run several sprints. I really want to go back. It's a great club.

"I'd never coach. At least not now. It's not for me. Maybe I'll try to get on a team in Europe," he said.

Stacom was the last player personnel director, doing so right?

"Well, Meyers is back," he said. "That's a big part of it. Catchings backing up Benson has really improved our center situation. Monerief has improved us at guard, even though I haven't been able to use him much. And we have a year of added maturity as a team."

Certainly, it helps that Dave Meyers, the UCLA alumnus who missed all of last season with a ruptured spinal disk, is back to play forward and do his share of the scoring. And it helps that Nelson traded for Harvey Catchings, an intimidating defensive center, to support Kent Benson. And it helps that Nelson spent the No. 5 pick in the NBA draft on Sidney Monerief, an exceptional guard from Arkansas.

But maybe the secret of what Nelson is achieving in Milwaukee lies more in that "added maturity as a team" that he mentions.

Nelson, you will recall, gained his own maturity as a basketball player in 11 seasons, five of them championship years, with the Boston Celtics. Red Auerbach, his guru, taught him you win with unselfish teamwork and hustle — provided you have players with the temperament to blend well as a team.

Thanks to his role as personnel director, Nelson has been able to draft and trade for people who fit his philosophy.

"We've got a lot of people who've been in the NCAA finals, or have won the thing," he points out.

Marques Johnson, Meyers and Richard Washington come from UCLA, Benson and Quinn Buckner from Indiana, Junior Bridgeman from Louisville, Lloyd Walton from Marquette. Teams don't make it to the Final Four in the NCAA tournament unless they are able to harness individual skills to team goals.

Johnson wins player honors

Rookie Earvin "Magic" Johnson was named National Basketball Association Player of the Week Monday for scoring 89 points in four games for the Los Angeles Lakers.

The 6-foot-8 guard also pulled down 35 rebounds in the four-game span and dished off 34 assists. Johnson hit on 68 percent of his shots from the field and concluded the week ending Nov. 11 with 24 points, 16 rebounds and 12 assists in a victory over Cleveland.

In becoming the first rookie this season to be honored as Player of the Week, Johnson faced stiff competition from Atlanta's John Drew, Denver's Dan Issel, Purvis Short of Golden State, Houston's Moses Malone and Quinn Buckner of Milwaukee.

Rodeo talk

He's Marvel-ous

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a feature on saddle bronc rider Joe Marvel who will be on hand at the College of Southern Idaho Expo Center when the Wilderness Circuit finals opens its three-day run Thursday. The rodeo, 8 p.m. each night, will run through Saturday.

(By Official Pro Rodeo News)

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Joe Marvel has the kind of face that should be on cereal boxes.

Marvel, at age 23, is PRCA world champion saddle bronc rider and the pride of Battle Mountain, Nev.

Saddle bronc riders who have been around a long time, and even those who haven't, concur that Marvel is the most talented bronc rider today.

During the 1978 season, Marvel got away from the family ranch more than usual, amassing more than $40,000 for the regular season. He added $15,000 for winning the NFR and $9,450 in Winston Rodeo Awards bonuses for the year.

Quite modestly, Marvel says he felt he has always had the potential to be the world's champ.

"I never really had the drive to rodeo full time. I finally tried it last year, and gained momentum and a lot more confidence — everything just seemed to fall into place, he said."

Those close to Marvel feel one of the biggest drives behind "Little Joe" is his cutely innocent, brunette wife Patrice. The Marvels and their two-year old son, Sam, live on a ranch Joe's dad recently bought and Joe runs himself.

JOE MARVEL
. . . saddle bronc champ

Marvel attended Cal Poly and the University of Nevada in Reno after ending an illustrious high school career. In 1973, as a senior at Battle Mountain, the young Marvel won the National High School saddle bronc title.

In 1974, at 19, Joe qualified for his first NFR along with his older brother, Mike. Joe handled the pressure at his first finals well. He won the 1974 saddle bronc title, becoming the youngest cowboy to accomplish this feat.

Saddle bronc riding is the most technical and stylist of the riding events in rodeo. Marvel has a riding style that is near perfect, and at 5-8, 145 pounds, he never shows any signs of pressure.

Joe Marvel also has the personality and character that typifies a world class pro cowboy.

Who knows — maybe his face will be on cereal boxes.

McEnroe wins in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — John McEnroe, 20, wrote a new chapter in his tennis book Monday when he became the first player ever to successfully defend the men's singles title in the $175,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament.

McEnroe, from New York, won the all-American final against Gene Mayer, 6-7, 6-3, 6-3, in a match that was one of the most thrilling and best played in the 11-year tournament.

McEnroe's triumph was worth $25,000 and he picked up 225 Grand Prix points.

"I didn't play too badly, but actually I was hard-pressed," McEnroe admitted after the game, accepting flowers of congratulations from Swedish Prime Minister Thorbjorn Fallidin. "Mayer surprised me with his strong serve and aggressive net play."

McEnroe's normally tricky serve didn't click in the match, nor did his usually great volley play.

"But when he needed to be good, he played at top notch," said Mayer, 23, who won his first set ever against McEnroe.

Both players fought on even terms in the opening set in front of a sell-out crowd of 4,500 spectators in the Royal Tennis Hall. But Mayer was the strongest in the tie-breaker, winning 7-4.

Mayer, of Wayne, New Jersey, got an edge in the second set when he broke McEnroe's serve for a 3-1 lead. But McEnroe, with a flurry of great returns, broke back and closed out the match with a new break in the ninth game.

JOHN MCENROE
. . . second title

"I was in trouble there," McEnroe said. "My serve didn't work and Mayer had answers to all my weapons."

In the deciding set, Mayer again went through the top seed's serve, leading 3-2, before McEnroe replied right away, breaking to 3-3.

He showed his true strength by denying his opponent any points during his own serve in the eighth game of the set.

"That was my best game of the evening," McEnroe said, referring to the eighth game. "If I had played like that the whole match, I think it would have been a shorter story for me."

Arthur Ashe told to stay off tour

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tennis star Arthur Ashe, admitting to having a minor heart attack last July, said Monday doctors have urged him to "take it easy" and gradually build back his strength through a carefully developed exercise and diet program.

Ashe, 36, who won the U.S. Open at Forest Hills in 1968 as an amateur, suffered a mild coronary July 31. Doctors are presently studying the results of a diagnostic test performed on Ashe's cardiovascular system.

"Although a heart attack is a very serious condition, mine was fortunately very mild and as a result there does not appear to be any substantial permanent damage," Ashe said. "In the meantime, doctors have strongly recommended that I continue to rest and take it easy.

"This advice has regretfully delayed ... my plans to resume a full-time schedule of competitive tennis."

What happened to George, the big winner?

By Ray Sons
©1979 Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — "I'll be back when the right opportunity comes along," George Allen said. "And when I come back, all we're going to do is win."

Win is what Allen does. The nation's foremost unemployed pro football coach is a walking rebuke to the adage that everybody loves a winner. If there ever is a testimonial dinner for the guy, there will have to be a separate hall for those who want to testify against him.

But he is a winner. In 12 seasons as head coach in Los Angeles and Washington, his winning percentage was .706. He never had a losing season.

Which raises the question of why Allen has been out of coaching since the late Carroll Rosenbloom fired him as coach of the Rams after two preseason games in 1978.

He hasn't changed. Straight questions beget oblique answers.

When I popped the obvious question ("When are you going to be back in coaching?") to open his appearance on the Wally Phillips radio show Friday, he ignored the query and proceeded to promote the worthy cause of the reunion of the 1963 Bears Nov. 16 in the Chicago Marriott Hotel for the benefit of Little City.

It reminded me of 1965 when the Bears had lost their first three games and I approached George, the Bear defensive coach, to ask him why the defensive team had not been playing as well as expected.

"Let's not talk about that now," he ducked. "Let's wait until we win one. Then I'll talk about it."

At 57, he retains one of the main characteristics that has made him a winner, the ability to concentrate totally on his goals and the job at hand. Any idle chatter about his next coaching position would not help him achieve that position. Meanwhile, the job at hand is helping his old friends in Chicago sell dinner tickets at $150 each.

Still, he maintains he has changed in one way. His absence from coaching has opened his eyes to the fact that not everyone thinks God put man on this earth solely to provide material for the NFL.

"Now I notice that people have forgotten by Monday the game you lost on Sunday," he said. "They don't see it as important as I thought they did. To a lot of people, that's a hill of beans."

That hill of beans always had been a mountain with George, and he had dedicated his every waking hour to climbing it.

Chicago's last championship team was the springboard that launched Allen into prominence. While it is true that he had superior athletes on his defensive team, it also is true that he coached them with imagination and tireless application. As he says, there never was a better set of linebackers than Bill George, Joe Fortunato and Larry Morris, nor a better defensive end than Doug Atkins. But the Bears of that era puzzled the opposing quarterback with a constantly changing set of defenses, with Fortunato frequently switching coverages with audibles. They pioneered the "nickel" defense, with five defensive backs in passing situations. They were in the vanguard of advances that would move pro defenses ahead of offenses for years. For that, Allen and George Halas deserve credit.

That team intercepted 36 passes and allowed only 144 points over a 14-game schedule.

"We never thought of ourselves as being on defense," Allen said Friday at a press conference. "We were such an offensive defense, if the wind was right, we'd just as soon kick off."

Allen learned a lot from Halas.

"As time goes by," he said, "I realize more what a great job George Halas did with that team. He motivated them, had them prepared mentally and physically."

Like Halas, Allen became a great believer in motivation. Like Halas, he was willing to work endless hours to win. Like Halas, he found that you win with tough people who make fewer mistakes than the opposition. He had been player personnel director for the Bears in his spare time after schooling the defense, and he still regards the ability to select the right people and use them properly as the key to consistent coaching success.

"All good coaches make very few mistakes in evaluating talent," he said. "They don't get rid of people who are going to make all-pro, they don't carry someone who isn't going to develop, and they play the right player in the right position."

With all his expertise and his winning record, Allen remains out of coaching. Some reasons are obvious.

Kimberly to boast quickness

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two more articles in a series of stories on Magic Valley girls' basketball.

KIMBERLY — Size and team speed are two ingredients incoming Coach Jack Altemose hopes will carry his Kimberly Bulldogs to a successful girls basketball record this year.

Kimberly, which opens its season Thursday at Murtaugh, has two returning starters and six lettermen plus a host of juniors to build around this year. The lettermen return from last year's 3-9 team.

The Bulldogs boast good depth in the center position with two-year veteran Elisa Iris and Connie Thompson both standing 5-9. The lone veteran forward is Julie Kruger, 5-6, while guards coming back are Kathy Singleton, 5-2; Lori Lasure, 5-2, and Cindy Pullman, 5-7.

Trying for their first letters will be Tammy Pinkston, Tina Coates, Melanie Savage, Marilyn Eacker, Lisa Molyneux, Lorene Freeman and Joan Piercy.

Coach Altemose says the weak part of the outfit right now is offense but expects it "will improve as the season progresses."

He adds "the shooting is a little weak right now."

He anticipates that Shoshone, Gooding and Declo will be strong contenders in the Canyon Conference.

The Kimberly schedule includes:

Nov. 15, Kimberly at Murtaugh; Nov. 20, Wendell at Kimberly; Nov. 27, Kimberly at Glenns Ferry; Nov. 29, Shoshone at Kimberly; Dec. 4, Kimberly at Valley; Dec. 10, Gooding at Kimberly; Dec. 11, Kimberly at Declo, and Dec. 17, Filer at Kimberly.

Dec. 20, Valley at Kimberly; Jan. 7, Glenns Ferry at Kimberly; Jan. 8, Hansen at Kimberly; Jan. 15, Declo at Kimberly; Jan. 17, Kimberly at Gooding; Jan. 21, Kimberly at Wendell, and Jan. 24, Kimberly at Filer.

Fatal boat crash

An out-of-control racing boat plowed into a crowd of spectators packed along the route of the Rio Balsas Marathon near Mexico City, killing two and injuring six others. Authorities said the accident occurred Sunday at the low and rocky Santa Elena rapids some 140 miles south of Mexico City during the first leg of the IX Balsas River Marathon and second World River Boat Championship. The Mexican entry "La Ruisena" lost control when it failed to negotiate the turn into the rapids. The boat hit several rocks and sailed directly into the crowd at full throttle, killing two spectators and injuring six others, authorities said.

Buhl returns one starter

BUHL — With just one returning starter and not a lot of height to choose from, Coach Janet Smutny believes her Buhl Indians girls' basketball team might need a while to catch up to their potential.

The Indians, who host Filer in the season opener at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, have six returning veterans. The returning starter, a two-year vet, is 5-8 Elaine Hellwig who will see action at center and forward.

Hellwig is the only senior letterman on the team although two seniors are seeking monograms this winter.

The five junior veterans are Trish Hudson, 5-5 guard; Kristen Easton, 5-5 guard; Diane Schaal, 5-4 guard; Barbara Stutzman, 5-4 guard, and Erica Brown, 5-9 forward.

First-year juniors include Robyn McDevitt, 5-7 forward; Chriss McDevitt, 5-7 forward; Rita Bennett, 5-7 forward, and Deena Chidester, 5-5 guard.

The seniors are Emma Karel, 5-8 center, and Pam Pooler, 5-4 guard.

Coach Smutny says she is pleased with the enthusiasm and hard work the team has been putting in. But she returned to the lack of height and experience as questions that must be answered as the season progresses.

Following Thursday night's opener, the Buhl schedule includes:

Nov. 20, Buhl at Jerome; Nov. 27, Buhl at Wood River; Nov. 30, Buhl at Malad; Dec. 3, Buhl at Burley; Dec. 13, Buhl at Twin Falls, and Dec. 18, Minico at Buhl.

Jan. 3, Buhl at Filer; Jan. 5, Burley at Buhl; Jan. 10, Buhl at Mountain Home; Jan. 14, Wood River at Buhl; Jan. 15, Jerome at Buhl; Jan. 25, Twin Falls at Buhl, and Feb. 1, Mountain Home at Buhl.

Buhl also will host the A-2 district tournament Feb. 4-8 and 14-16.

'Bama retains poll lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alabama and Nebraska remained the nation's top two college football teams and Ohio State eased up two notches to third Monday in UPI's 10th weekly Board of Coaches ratings.

Southern California, after a 24-17 victory over Washington that all but secured a Rose Bowl berth for the Trojans, dropped one rung into fourth.

The powerful Buckeyes, under the guidance of Earle Bruce, scored a 34-7 victory Saturday over Iowa, forcing the Hawkeyes into 10 turnovers, and moved up to third. A win or a tie against once-beaten Michigan next week would give Ohio State a Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

"I would think our young men are willing and able to play four quarters of football versus the University of Michigan," said Bruce. "I guess we're going to have to do that to be able to win."

Two new teams — Tennessee and Indiana — became members of the nation's Top 20 for the first time this season. The No. 18 Vols whipped the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame 40-18 and the 19th-ranked Hoosiers registered a solid 45-14 triumph over Illinois.

The top-ranked Crimson Tide managed to maintain their status as the best team in the nation by struggling to a 3-0 victory over determined Louisiana State. The second-ranked Cornhuskers, who have turned in listless performances in each of the past two weeks, got by Kansas State 21-12 to maintain their No. 2 ranking.

Florida State, which registered a 27-7 victory over South Carolina, moved up one spot into fifth and Texas advanced two places into the sixth position with a 21-13 decision over Houston. Oklahoma remained seventh with a 38-0 victory over Kansas and Houston dropped four places into the eighth slot.

Arkansas kept its No. 9 rating with a 29-20 verdict over Baylor and unbeaten Brigham Young advanced one spot to No. 10 with a 31-17 triumph over Long Beach State.

Rounding out the Top 20, in order, were Pittsburgh, Purdue, Michigan, Clemson, Washington, Temple, Wake Forest, Tennessee, Indiana and Baylor.

The top 20

1.	Alabama (39) (9-0)	614
2.	Nebraska (3) (9-0)	556
3.	Ohio St. (1) (10-0)	536
4.	Southern Cal (1-1 p-0-17	534

18.	Tennessee (5-3)	17
19.	Indiana (7-3)	16
20.	Baylor (6-3)	15

Note — By agreement with the American Football Coaches Association, teams on probation by the NCAA are ineligible for the top 20 and national championship consideration by the UPI Board of Coaches. These teams currently on probation are Oklahoma State, Auburn and Memphis State.

Rose Bowl

It's down to one game in the Big 10 conference

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Neither Michigan's dim Rose Bowl chances nor the absence of Woody Hayes as coach of the Buckeyes will detract from Saturday's Ohio State-Michigan game, says Wolverines' Coach Bo Schembechler.

"The Rose Bowl is Saturday," Schembechler cracked Monday.

"It won't take anything away from the game that our chances for the Rose Bowl aren't very good, even if we win it," Schembechler said at his weekly press luncheon.

Ohio State enters the game a prohibitive favorite to end Michigan's three-year domination of the series. The Buckeyes haven't scored a touchdown on the Wolverines since beating them 21-14 in 1975.

The Buckeyes enter the game with a 10-0 record, seven of those wins in conference play. The Wolverines are tied with Purdue for second at 6-1 but are 8-2 overall.

A win or tie would put Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce in his first Rose Bowl game. It would take a Michigan victory plus an Indiana win over Purdue to put the Wolverines in Pasadena, Calif., against the Pacific Ten's representative on New Year's Day. Purdue is out of consideration for the Rose Bowl.

"I said all along that Ohio State would be in here playing for the championship," Schembechler said. "And that was back when they were talking about not having it (the game) on TV.

"I expected Ohio State to be here undefeated, but I wasn't sure where we'd be," said Schembechler, who coached his first Ohio State-Michigan game back in 1969.

It will be Schembechler's first experience coaching his "big game" without Hayes on the other sideline. Schembechler was an apprentice under Hayes and many observers say he closely resembles the former Ohio State coach.

"Michigan-Ohio State will go on regardless of who's coaching, you've got to understand that," Schembechler said. "It'll be gone pretty soon, too.

"No matter how you add it up, Bruce was brought up under Woody. There's a certain influence there. So was I," he added. "But the players are the same guys. They're a year older. There are a couple of freshmen there, but the big difference is that they are a year older," Schembechler said.

Hayes invited

Woody Hayes can't coach in this year's Ohio State-Michigan game, but he can attend as the guest of Wolverine Coach Bo Schembechler.

Schembechler confirmed Monday he has invited his mentor and former coaching rival to Ann Arbor for Saturday's game.

"Yeh, I did," Schembechler said in admitting he extended an invitation to Hayes some time ago. "There's no way he'll probably come. But if he should decide to, I'm sure we can probably find some place for him, probably in the pressbox or someplace.

Purdue elsewhere?

The Purdue Faculty Senate Monday agreed to waive its rule prohibiting the Boilermaker football team from taking part in a postseason game if that requires leaving campus before the end of the semester.

The ruling, for this year only, gives George King, Purdue's director of athletics, permission to accept a bid to a bowl game that would involve the team before the semester ends on Dec. 22. Those bowls are the Garden State, Holiday, Sun, Liberty and Tangerine.

"We really were not happy about having to go to the Senate for such an exception," said King. "We would much prefer to play in a bowl that does not interfere with our academic calendar. But the rule is there and we had to look into it."

"It gives us some flexibility in making a decision should we receive more than one bid on Saturday. If that's the case, we would still, in all likelihood, select a bowl game that does not prohibit our student body from full participation," he said.

Briefly in sports

Gompf wins honors

DENVER (UPI) — Utah linebacker Bill Gompf, a 6-foot-2, 215-pound sophomore who ran an intercepted pass back 21 yards and was credited with 11 tackles in a 35-0 victory over Texas-El Paso, was named Western Athletic Conference defensive player of the week Monday.

WAC officials said the interception was the sixth of the year for Gompf, only two short of a school record. He also had three unassisted tackles and a pass deflection in the victory as Texas-El Paso was held to just 221 total yards.

Highest dive recorded

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A dive that cost Doug Jones a broken wrist and two black eyes has been certified as a record for the world's highest dive.

Don Torry, an Olympic judge, has confirmed that the dive from a crane 165 feet above Baltimore's Inner Harbor broke the previous record of 158 feet, set by Sam Hernandez.

After Jones made the jump, there was a question about whether the dive could be considered a record because Jones faltered when turning his somersault.

Jones hit the water at about 100 mph, breaking his right wrist, chipping a bone in his left wrist and blackening both eyes.

Cauthen wins races

TOKYO (UPI) — American jockey Steve Cauthen, overcoming Sunday's "big splash", scored two victories at Tokyo's PI race track Monday.

A once-disappointed crowd of 13,000 cheered wildly Sunday after the 19-year-old Cauthen, who fell from a horse in the first of his four races, won the final race by covering 2,400 meters in 2:06 1-5.

Cauthen had "a big splash" in the first start, his father later said, adding he was convinced his son picked up his pace as the pressure on him eased.

United Way blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two groups said Monday they will file a complaint against the commercial television networks, charging that United Way announcements during NFL games present only one side of a controversial issue.

The National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy and the Media Access Project, both non-profit organizations, said they will file the complaint under the Federal Communications Commission's fairness doctrine. That doctrine requires broadcasters to allow reasonable opportunity for both sides of controversial issues to be aired.

AL stars triumph

TOKYO (UPI) — Willie Wilson of the Kansas City Royals singled home Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday to give the American League a 6-5 victory over the National League.

The triumph was the second straight for the AL in their nine-game Japanese tour.

Baltimore's Ken Singleton belted a two-run home run in the eighth for the AL, which beat the NL 6-3 in their third game Sunday. The NL won the opening game 11-2 and the two teams battled to a 5-5 tie in the second game.

Right-hander Mark Clear of the California Angels, who relieved Sid Monge of the Cleveland Indians in the ninth, collected his first victory at Seibu Stadium on the outskirts of Tokyo.

Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals sparked a three-run first-inning rally when he tripled.

Cecil Cooper of the Milwaukee Brewers hit a solo homer for the AL in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Gene Garber of the Atlanta Braves gave up five hits, including Singleton's homer into the centerfield stands and a single by Wilson and took the loss.

The fifth U.S. major league All-Star game will be held at Nagoya Stadium in central Honshu Tuesday.

Aliotti tops Big Sky

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State quarterback Joe Aliotti and Weber State defensive back Mark Massey have been named football players of the week in Big Sky Conference.

Aliotti was named the league's offense player of the week for the third time this season as he led his team to a 28-27 victory over Nevada-Reno Saturday.

GET THE PICTURE?

Beautiful country setting with a meandering stream, chirping birds, and towering trees. In the center of this park-like atmosphere, majestically rests this gracious older home. It has 5 bedrooms, 2 sitting rooms, and 3 bathrooms (among other things). Take the superior quality and distinctive style of yesterday's home and add the modern conveniences of today-- this home offers both. Choice canyon rim location provides complete privacy-- yet not far away from nice neighbors. First time ever offered for sale. Does the picture look good? Call today for a "close-up".

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In this charity-game hand, South will wind up playing in two, three or four hearts. The bidding in the box shows one way to get to four.

All West will open with the king of diamonds and probably shift to a club at trick two. South will win, lead his jack of diamonds and get to discard his losing spade on the diamond queen.

Those West players who make the superior shift to a spade will collect a spade trick and their top diamonds.

In all cases South will get to lead the singleton heart from dummy. A few will finesse the nine and wind up losing just one heart trick. Those who finesse the jack will have to lose two heart tricks.

A few South players get top scores by making four hearts doubled. They did not get the spade shift, and when they got around to leading trumps they decided the doubler held K 10 x x and took the nine-spot finesse.

Most Wests who found the spade lead at trick two held declarer to eight tricks and were plus 100 against four hearts, plus 50 against three and minus 100 against those who only got to two.

All in all, any plus score either way was above average.

NEW VANTAGE ULTRA LIGHTS

INTRODUCING ULTRA TASTE—AT ULTRA LOW TAR.

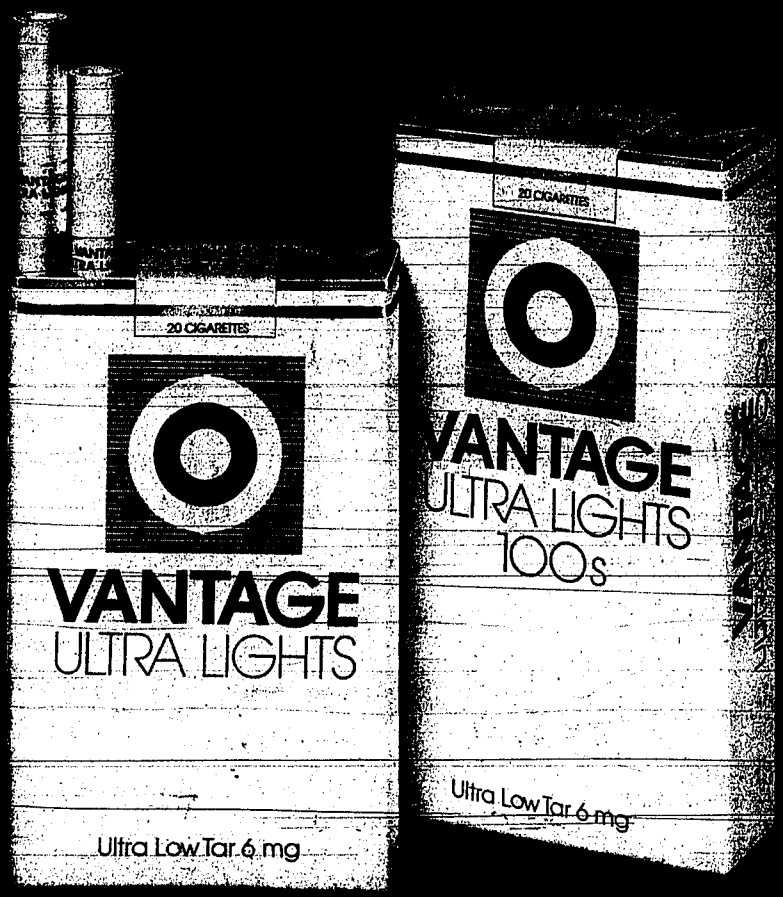
Ultra taste. Never-before, silk smooth, truly satisfying taste—in an ultra low tar cigarette!

(And we do mean ultra low. At only 6 mg of tar, it's lower than 90% of all the cigarettes that people buy.)

How is it possible?

Through a unique blend of very select, flavorful tobaccos.

That's the Ultra Cigarette—new Vantage Ultra Lights from Vantage.



ONLY 6 mg tar
